Failing!

That is what a great many people are doing. They don't know just what is the matter, but they have a combination of pains and aches, and each month they grow worse.

The only sure remedy yet found is BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, and this by rapid and thorough assimilation with the blood purifies and enriches it, and rich, strong blood flowing to every part of the system repairs the wasted tissues, drives out disease and gives health and strength.

This is why BROWN'S IRON BITTERS will cure kidney and liver diseases, consumption, rheumatism, neuralgia, dyspepsia, malaria, intermittent fevers, &c.

NO TIME FOR HATING.

Begone with feud! Away with strife!
  Our human hearts unmating;
Let us be friends again! This life
  Is all too short for hating!
So dull the day, so dim the way,
  So round the road we're faring—
Far better weal with faithful friend,
  Than stalk alone uncaring.

The barren fig, the withered vine,
  Are types of selfish living;
But souls that give, like thine and mine,
  Renew their life by giving.
While cypress waves o'er early graves,
  On all the ways we're going,
Far better plant where seed is scant,
  Than tread on fruit that's growing.

Away with scorn! since die we must,
  And rest on one low pillow;
There are no rivals in the dust—
  No foes beneath the willow.
So dry the bowers, so few the flowers,
  Our earthly way discloses,
Far better stoop, where daisies droop,
  Than tramp on broken roses!

Of what are all the joys we hold,
  Compared to joys above us?
And what are rank, and power, and gold,
  Compared to hearts to love us?
So fleet our years, so full of tears,
  So close death is awaiting—
God gives us space for loving grace
  But leaves no time for hating.

JUSTICE'S CRIMES.

INNOCENT VICTIMS WHO HAVE SUFFERED FOR THE GUILTY.

The chains of circumstances which have dragged the innocent to the expiation of the crimes of others clank in the criminal records of all countries and ages. Innumerable links compose them, some so strong that they have endured the severest tests the law could apply to them; others mere playthings, often forged by the victim's own act. Sir Edward Coke affirms that the most common cause of false condemnation on the evidence of circumstances is the inclination of the party charged with the offense to lie on his own behalf when he finds the evidence against him so plausible. In order to combat the coincidences of Fate he invents what he considers a cogent lie to explain it away, and is invariably detected. One case in the great lawyer's own cognizance was that of a gentleman who was accused of the murder of his infant niece and ward. He was so frightened that he produced a false ward to disprove the charge of which he knew himself to be guiltless. The trick was discovered and he was hanged. Shortly afterward the victim he had suffered for not creating was rescued from the band of Gypsies who had kidnapped her.

DOOMED BY HIS DAUGHTER.

In the year 1721 there resided in Edinburg an upholsterer named William Shaw, who had a daughter, Catherine Shaw. This young woman encouraged the addresses of John Lawson, a profligate young man, addicted to every kind of dissipation. He was forbidden the house, but the daughter continued to see him clandestinely; the father, on the discovery, kept her strictly confined.

William Shaw had for some time urged his daughter to receive the addresses of a son of Alexander Robertson, a friend and neighbor; and one evening, being very urgent with her thereon, she peremptorily refused, declaring she preferred death to being young Robertson's wife. The most passionate expressions arose on both sides, and the words barbarity, cruelty and death were frequently pronounced by the daughter loudly and emphatically.

The greater number of the buildings in Edinburgh are tall and massive, divided into flats. William Shaw resided in one of these, and a partition only divided his dwelling from that of James Morrison, a watch-case maker. This man indistinctly overheard the conversation and quarrel between Catherine Shaw and her father, and was particularly struck with the repetition of the above words.

At the end of the squabble he heard Shaw go out and lock the door, and presently heard several groans from the daughter. Alarmed, he called some of his neighbors, who, in his room, not only heard the groans, but distinctly heard Catharine Shaw two or three times faintly exclaim: "Cruel father, thou art the cause of my death." A Constable was procured and an entrance forced. Catherine was found weltering in her blood, and the fatal knife by her side. She was alive, but speechless; but on questioning her as to owing her death to her father, she was just able to make a motion with her head apparently in the affirmative, and expired. At this critical moment William Shaw returned. At the sight of his daughter he turned pale, trembled, and was ready to sink. The first surprise and the succeeding horror left little doubt of his guilt in the breasts of the beholders; and even that little was done away on the Constable discovering that the shirt of William Shaw was bloody. Evidence such as this was considered ample to secure his hanging in November, 1721.

Next year a man who had become the lessee of his rooms found a scrap of folded paper in a crevice behind the mantel-piece, from which it had evidently fallen or been blown. It was a letter from Catherine Shaw, five minutes after her father's departure, announcing that she intended to commit suicide.

It may have been some satisfaction to William Shaw that when his innocence was established the authorities caused a flag to be waved over his grave.

WITHIN AN INCH OF HIS LIFE.

In the reign of Charles II, Jacques du Moulin, a French refugee, having brought over his family and a small sum of money, employed it in purchasing lots of goods that had been condemned at the Custom-house, which he again disposed of by retail. He came frequently to persons of whom he had received money with pieces of counterfeit coin, and pretended that they were among the pieces which had been paid him. This soon brought him into disrepute, and he gradually lost business and credit. It happened that having sold goods to one Harris, a person with whom he had no dealings, he received the money in guineas and Portugal gold. In a few days he returned with six pieces, which he averred were of base metal, and part of the sum which he had a few days before received. Du Moulin insisted that he had put the money in a drawer by itself, and locked it up till he offered it in payment of a bill of exchange, and then the pieces were found to be bad. Harris became angry, and charged Du Moulin with intending a fraud and told the story wherever he went, until the refugee sued him for defamation. In self-defense Harris and several previous victims joined to sue out a warrant against him on a charge of offering counterfeit coin.

He was arrested and his house searched. Counterfeit coin, tools, molds and the like were found in his escritoire. On this evidence he was convicted and sentenced to death. A few days before the carrying out of the sentence a seal engraver named Williams was killed by a fall from his horse. His wife, who was pregnant, suffered a fatal miscarriage from the shock, and at the point of death sent for the wife of the condemned man and revealed the fact that her husband had been associated with three other men in coining base money, which she had been frequently employed to put off, and was intrusted with the whole secret. One of these persons hired himself to Du Moulin as a kind of footman and porter, and being provided by the gang with false keys, had disposed of a very considerable sum of bad money by opening his master's escritoire and leaving it there in the stead of an equal number of good pieces, which he took out. The men were taken the same day, and at their lodgings a great quantity of bad money, and many instruments for coining were found. Upon this discovery Du Moulin's execution was suspended, and a little further inquiry developed the fact that the damnatory tools found in his desk had been placed there by the footman who, when the officers came to search for evidence against his master on the charges brought by Harris and his associates, thought they were after him and got the criminating implements out of the way of doing him harm.

THE HIGHWAYMAN'S SCAPEGOAT.

In the year 1742, near Hull, a gentleman was stopped late in the evening, about seven miles from the town, by a single highwayman with a mask on his face, who robbed him of a purse containing twenty guineas. The highwayman rode off at full speed, and the gentleman, agitated by what had passed, rode only two miles further, and stopped at the Bell Inn, kept by Mr. James Brunell. He related to several persons the fact of his having been robbed, to which he added that when he traveled he always gave his gold a peculiar mark, and that every guinea in the purse taken from him was thus marked.

The gentleman had not long finished his supper when Mr. Brunell came into the parlor where he was, and informed him that he had a waiter, one John Jennings, who had of late been full of money, and very extravagant. Long before dark that day he had sent out Jennings to change a guinea for him; the man had only come back since the arrival of the traveler saying he could not get change, and, seeing Jennings to be in liquor he had sent him off to bed, determined to discharge him in the morning. Mr. Brunell continued to say that when the guinea was brought back to him, it struck him that it was not the same which he had sent out for change, there being on the returned one a mark, which he was very sure was not upon the other; he unluckily paid away the guinea to a man who lived at some distance, and who had now gone home, but he suggested that Jennings' clothing be searched.

In the slumbering sot's pockets were found the purse and nineteen marked guineas. He was hanged at Hull, and a year afterward Brunell himself was apprehended for robbing a guest, and found to have been guilty of many highway robberies, among them that of the twenty guineas. After robbing the traveler, he had got home before him by a short cut and rapid riding, and paid one of the guineas away to a man to whom he owed a small bill. Afterward he heard with consternation that the coins were marked, and the thought of accusing and sacrificing poor Jennings, who was drunk enough to be an easy victim to his own destruction suggested itself, and was fatally carried out.

THE VILLAGE INN MURDER.

The famous case of Jonathan Bradford will bear retelling. Bradford kept an inn in Oxfordshire, on the London road to Oxford. He bore a respectable character. Mr. Hayes, a gentleman of fortune, put up at Bradford's. He there joined company with whom he supped, and in conversation unguardedly mentioned that he had then about him a considerable sum of money. In due time they retired to their respective chambers, the gentlemen to a two bedded room, leaving a candle burning in the chimney corner. Some hours after they were in bed, one of the gentlemen being awake, heard a deep groan in an adjoining chamber, and awoke his friend. The sound increasing, as of one dying and in pain, they proceeded to the next chamber, from whence the groans seemed to come. The door being ajar, they saw a light in the room and a man weltering in his blood in the bed, with another standing over him with a dark lantern in one hand and a knife in the other. The man seemed as much petrified as themselves but his terror carried with it all the appearance of guilt.

The gentlemen soon discovered that the murdered person was the stranger with whom they had that night supped, and that the man who was standing over him was their host. They seized Bradford and disarmed him of his knife, and charged him with being the murderer. He positively denied the crime, and asserted that he came there with the same humane intentions as themselves; for that, hearing a noise, which was succeeded by groaning, he got out of bed, struck a light, armed himself with a knife for his defense, and had that minute entered the room before them.

He was found guilty in spite of his protestations, and expiated the crime. Long afterward it was discovered that the real murderer was Hayes' footman.

But there was a species of poetic justice about Bradford's execution after all. He had actually been on his way to kill his guest when he discovered that some one had reached that end before him.

"THE FELLOW THAT LOOKS LIKE ME."

Another case, curious by reason of the mistake in identity involved was that of Thomas Geddely, who lived as a waiter with Mrs. Hannah Williams, who kept a public house at York, and was deemed in wealthy circumstances. One morning her desk was found broken open and robbed, and Thomas Geddely disappearing at the same time, no doubt was entertained as to the robber. About a twelve-month after a man calling himself James Crow came to York, and worked a few days for a precarious subsistence in carrying goods as a porter. Many accosted him as Thomas Geddeley. He declared he did not know them, and that his name was James Crow, and that he never was at York before. But this was held as merely a trick to save himself from the consequences of the robbery.

His mistress was sent for, and in the midst of many people instantly singled him out and called him by name (Thomas Geddely). He absolutely affirmed that he was not Thomas Geddely, that he knew no such person, that he never was in York before, and that his name was James Crow. Not, however giving a good account of himself, but rather admitting that he was a vagabond and petty rogue, and being unable to prove an alibi, he was found guilty and executed. Some time after the true Thomas Geddely, who, on robbing his mistress had fled to Ireland, was taken up in Dublin for a crime of the same stamp, and there condemned and executed.

HUNG FOR A WOMAN'S CRIME.

Forty odd years ago a poor German came to New York and took lodgings, where he was allowed to do his own cooking in the same room with the family. The husband and wife lived in a perpetual quarrel. One day the German came into the kitchen with a clasp knife and a pan of potatoes, and he began to pare them for his dinner. The quarrelsome couple were in a more violent altercation than usual, but he sat with his back toward them, and being ignorant of their language, felt no danger of being involved in their dispute. But the woman, with a sudden and unexpected movement, snatched the knife from his hand and plunged it into her husband's heart. She had sufficient presence of mind to rush into the street and scream murder. The poor foreigner in the meanwhile, seeing the wounded man reel, sprang forward to catch him in his arms, and drew out the knife. People from the street crowded in and found him with the dying man in his arms, the knife in his hand, and blood upon his clothes.

The woman swore in the most positive terms that he had been fighting with her husband, and had stabbed him with a knife he always carried. The unfortunate German knew too little English to understand her accusation or to tell his own story. He was dragged off to prison, and the true state of the case was made known through an interpreter; but it was not believed, and the real criminal swore unhesitatingly that she saw him commit the murder. He was executed, notwithstanding the most persevering efforts of his lawyer, John Anthon, whose convictions of the man's innocence were so painfully strong that from that day he refused to have any connection with a capital case, very much as a well known ex-Ring Mayor did a couple of years ago. Some years after the woman died, and on her deathbed confessed her agency in the diabolical transaction.

Society, according to Mrs. Lydia Maria Child, who tells the story, was intensely agitated by the discovery, but the power to atone for the wrong had been thrown away, and the poor victim did not profit by this tardy repentance.

Hanging may not be played out in New York, as a vulgar assassin once made himself historical by asserting, but if it had many such victims it ought to be.

WHAT WAS HEARD WHEN THE PIANO STOPPED.—There was a social gathering in Rockland the other evening, and among the guests present was a musical genius from Boston. A number of local celebrities had favored the company with selections, both vocal and instrumental, and then the musical genius from Boston was with great difficulty prevailed upon to play a piece upon the piano. He seated himself amid much applause, and fell to pawing the ivory keys with a vigor that left no doubt of the sincerity of his emotions. The audience contemplated the scene for a brief moment, and then fell into a pleasant and comfortable conversation, intermixed with light and joyous bursts of laughter, as is customary among good society when a person is performing on the piano. An idea flew into the mind of the musical genius as he proudly listened to the storm of laughter and conversation which his talent had called forth. He suddenly stopped in the middle of a bar, or a rest, or some musical term, and the awful silence of the piano was filled by the following fragmentary ends of current remarks:

"Was awfully cold," said the thin woman in blue dress and green ribbons.

"Of the best pork," said the bald-headed man with the mottled face.

"So we chipped another ten all around," said the young man in the phenominally short coat.

"Puts on airs like all Boston musicians," said the sad-eyed party who had been watching the musical genius' back with jealous eyes.

"Soaked fat dreadfully," said the little woman in corkscrew curls.

"Always flirts in a company like this," said the maiden lady, whose eyes were fastened on a handsome girl on the opposite side of the room.

"Think family albums are just heavenly," said a gushing young thing in pink, who was talking to a weak-eyed young man in glasses.

"Can't like these mixed times," said the prim women in gray hair and a jet black switch.

"I eat sours on my stomach," said the dyspeptic-looking man in the long black coat.

"Cut them off with father's razor," said the girl in tight boots.

"Sewed a patch on his old ones," said the fat woman in the baby blue sack.

And silence fell on the assemblage, and the thermometer on the mantel dropped to twenty degrees below zero.—Rockland (Me.) Courier.

TAKING TIME BY THE FORELOCK.—The Detroit Free Press says: At the battle of Groveton Stonewall Jackson tried an experiment which nearly frightened a Federal force out of their boots. Bars of railroad iron were cut up into foot lengths and fired from some of his heaviest guns, and the noise these missiles made as they went sailing through the air was a sort of cross between the shriek of a woman and the bray of a mule. The Federals listened in wonder at the first few which banged through the tree tops, and presently one of the pieces fell just in front of a Pennsylvania regiment. A captain stepped forward to inspect it, and after turning it over he rushed to his colonel with the news.

"Colonel, them infernal rebs are firing railroad iron at us!"

"No!"

"They are, for a fact!"

"Captain, advance your company to that ridge and deploy, and the minute you find Jackson is getting ready to fire freight cars at us send me word. I don't propose to have my regiment mashed into the ground when it can just as well be decently exterminated in the regular way!"

THE ONLY FULL THING.—A negro family in Galveston are everlastingly quarreling and disturbing the neighbors. A gentleman living close by met the wife and said to her: "You are always kicking up a row. Why is there no harmony in your house?" "Dat's jess what I was telling de lazy, wuffless niggah. Dar ain't no harmony in de house and no meat, and de bacon's all eat up, and de meal bar'l is empty. He is de only thing in de house what's full all de time."

A DREAM OF MURDER.

The narrator said that, some years ago, he was the "best-man" at the marriage of a friend, who afterward proceeded with his bride to a large town in England. The lady possessed great personal charms, and had quite a following of suitors, the most conspicuous of whom was a young chemist, who did bear the most irreproachable of characters; but shortly before the marriage, this young man disappeared. The married couple were very happy for several months, till an event happened which bears on the story. Returning from a concert one evening, the young wife received a slight chill, which threatened to rest on the lungs, and medical assistance was procured. The doctor came, and after ordering a simple prescription, he retired, remarking that his patient would be all right in a day or two. This anticipation, however, was not fulfilled. To the great grief of the husband, his wife showed symptoms of extreme lassitude, and the careful diagnosis of an eminent physician failed to account for the abnormal condition. Medicine was of course prescribed freely, but with no beneficial result. Exhaustion supervened; and at this crisis the husband telegraphed for his friend to Edinburg to come and perform some little business.

The summons was readily obeyed, as the friend had a sincere admiration for the husband, and the greatest respect for the suffering wife. Seated that night in a Midland carriage, with no companion but his thoughts, the young man recalled all the circumstances of the marriage, not forgetting the sinister incident of the disappointed apothecary's disappearance. As he thought on all these matters, he fell asleep. He awoke with a start, and he was at Carlisle. His sleep had not been refreshing, for it had been disturbed by a dream that troubled him. Unsentimental by nature, he tried to laugh the fancy away; but it refused to be exorcised. Still harping on some of the incidents, he reached his friend's home, and found the young wife in a hopeless condition. The husband was saddened and perplexed; and his friend, realizing that action of some kind was necessary to raise the mourner from his stupor, succeeded in getting him to talk about the business he wished transacted. They went through a number of streets conversing familiarly, when all of a sudden the husband found himself grasped by the arm, and looked around to see his friend gazing eagerly into the window of a shop. Recovering himself in an instant, the visitor talked freely, and did not volunteer an explanation of his rather erratic conduct; but on returning to the house, he requested the servant to bring the bottle containing the medicine last given to the suffering woman. The girl brought the bottle, and said she had just washed it, as the doctor had ordered her to go for another dose.

This was disappointing, certainly. But the friend was a born detective, and not to be balked. The girl went for the medicine.—When she returned with it the young man took the bottle, and without acquainting the husband of his intention, left the house with the prescription, returning after a brief interval with the medicine. During the night, the breathing of the patient became easier, and when the doctor called the next day, he was able to report symptoms of recovery.

In the evening the friend, accompanied by a man of severe demeanor, entered the room where the husband sat, and requested him to come out on a little piece of business.—They walked in silence through several streets, and at last reached a police station, which they entered. Behind the desk there there was seated a man with his face buried in his hands. The officer on duty, without much circumlocution, told the business which had called them there. Addressing the husband, he said that the man seated in the office was charged with administering noxious drugs. When the accused stood up, the party saw the altered features of the missing chemist. A light seemed to flash over the husband's face; and after he had made all the necessary depositions, he hurried home. At the next assizes, the chemist was sentenced to ten years' penal servitude; and as he pleaded guilty, the public knew nothing of the circumstances more than was contained in the charge. One of the prosecutors, however, had manifested a great interest in the case; and as the husband and his friend were leaving the court, he requested the latter to give some explanation of the manner in which his suspicions were first called forth against the criminal. The friend at once told his story.

In the railway carriage, he had dreamed that he was walking through a large city which he had never visited. At length he came upon a row of shops, and at a window of one of these he observed the face of a man, debased and vindictive in its expression, and quite familiar to him. The man held a mortar and pestle in his hands, and while he mixed up some drug, there was a baleful light in the fishy-looking eyes. Then the sharp whistle of the engine awakened the dreamer. The sequel was plain. Walking with his friend through the labyrinth of streets, could he despise his sleeping fancy when he saw before him the actual row of shops, while at one of the windows stood a figure that haunted his memory like a nightmare? It was a perfect revelation. When he returned, and secured the medicine and prescription, he went to another chemist, and procured the needed restorative, and then called upon an analyst with the first bottle. It was found to contain a deadly narcotic; and the police authorities having been satisfied with the main facts, ordered the arrest of the jealous and wretched man, before the guilt of actual murder lay at his door.

NATURAL CURIOSITY.—One of the most singular vegetable natural curiosities to be seen in this section of the country can be witnessed growing at Sharp's Ridge, Mayberry township, this county, where the public road passes over the Ridge from Big Roaring Creek. It is two pine trees, each about sixteen or eighteen inches in diameter, standing several feet distant from each other, but connected by a branch about fifteen feet from the ground. This branch is as thick as an ordinary man's body and at either end, where it connects with the trees, has a bulging growth around it, making it impossible to tell from which tree the branch originally sprung. Many surmises have been made how the trees became so compactly united, a pair of regular vegetable Siamese twins, but no person in the neighborhood can remember far back enough to throw light on the subject. Those of our citizens who have leisure should take a ride to the locality and examine this natural curiosity, as it will repay them for the jaunt.—Danville Intelligencer.

BLOOD AND THUNDER NOVELIST.

The other day a stout woman, armed with an umbrella and leading a small urchin, called at the office of a New York boy's story paper.

"Is this the place where they fight Indians?" she inquired of the gentleman in charge. "Is this the locality where the brave boy charges up the canyon and speeds a bullet to the heart of the dusky redskin?" and she jerked the urchin around by the ear and brought her umbrella down on the desk.

"We publish stories for boys," replied the young man evasively.

"I want to know if these are the premises on which the daring lad springs upon his fiery mustang and, darting through the circle of the thunderstruck savages, cuts the captive's cords and bears him away before the wondering Indians have recovered from their astonishment? That's the information I'm after. I want to know if that sort of thing is perpetrated here!" and she swung the umbrella around her head.

"I don't remember those specific acts," protested the young man.

"I want to know if this is the precinct where the adventurous boy jumps on the back of a buffalo and with unerring aim picks off one by one the blood-thirsty pursuers, who bite the dust at every crack of his faithful rifle! I'm looking for the place where that sort of thing happens?" and this time she brought the unlucky young man a tremendous whack across the back.

"I think—" commenced the dodging victim.

"I'm in search of the shop in which the boy road agent holds the quivering stage driver powerless with his glittering eye, while he robs the male passengers with an adroitness born of long experience, and kisses the hands of the lady passengers with a gallantry of bearing that bespeaks noble birth and a chivalrous nature!" screamed the woman, driving the young man into a corner. "I'm looking for the apartment in which that business is transacted!" and down came the umbrella with trip hammer force on the young man's head.

"Upon my soul, ma'am—" gasped the wretched youth.

"I want to be introduced to the jars in which you keep the boy scouts of the Sierras! Show me the bins full of the boy detectives of the prairie! Point out to me the barrels full of boy pirates of the Spanish main!" and with each demand she dropped the umbrella on the young man's skull until he skipped over the desk and sought safety in a neighboring canyon.

"I'll teach 'em," she panted, grasping the urchin by the ear and leading him off. "I'll teach 'em to make it good or dance. Want to go fight Indians any more? Want to stand proudly upon the pinnacle of the mountain and scatter the plain beneath with the bleeding bodies of uncounted slain? Want to say 'hist!' in a tone that brooks no contradiction? Propose to spring upon the taffrail and with a ringing word of command send a broadside into the richly laden gallery and then mercifully spare the beautiful maiden in the cabin, that she may become your bride? Eh? Going to do it any more?"

With each question she hammered the yelping urchin until his bones were sore and he protested his permanent abandonment of all the glories enumerated.

"Then come along," said she, taking him by the collar. "Let me catch you around with any more ramrods and carving knives, and you'll think the leaping, curling resistless prairie fire had swept with a ferocious roar of triumph across the trembling plains and lodged in your pantaloons to stay."

THE DEVIL COME UP TO COOL OFF.—Capt. Paul Boyton, who made himself famous by his long trips on water in his rubber swimming suit, tells the following incident of one of his travels:

"One evening, above Lewisburg, on the Mississippi, I was on the look out for some place where I could stop, or for some person from whom I could obtain information, when, near the bank of the river, I discovered smoke issuing from the chimney of a small cabin. I hauled to and blew my bugle. For some time the smoke issuing from the chimney was the only sign of life. Finally a man, an easy kind of an individual, came walking down leisurely, regarding me curiously.

"'How far is it to Lewisburg?' I asked.

"'It's a putty good distance.'

"'But how far do you call it?'

"'I don't call it.'

"'Confounded it, man; is it two, three or four thousand miles?'

"'I reckon it's one of the numbers.'

"Then I realized that I had met a kinsman of the Arkansaw traveler. My irritation, which had at first been exhibited, subsided, and desiring to get as much information as possible, I asked, pointing to a bar:

"'Which side of the channel shall I take?'

"'Either side you please.'

"'Which do you consider the better?'

"'I am not attendin' to other people's business.'"

"'Which side do the steamboats take?'

"'It's owin' ter what captain is aboard.'

"'Well, bringing the thing down to a point, how long will it take me to go to Lewisburg?'

"'It's owin' ter how fast yer travel.'"

"'My friend, I think you are the d——d'st fool in Arkansas.'

"'An', stranger, I think you are the devil come up to cool off. Go home.'"

A TREE THAT SUPPORTS MANY OTHERS.—There is a curiosity on lower Ogelthorpe street, says the Columbus Inquirer-Sun, that has attracted considerable attention from the residents of that section. It is a China tree that grew up very tall and several years ago the top was taken off, leaving the main trunk of the tree about twenty feet high.—On the top it has become somewhat decayed, but is making up for lost life by supporting a young forest. There are several different shrubs growing out from it, among others an evergreen, three or four feet tall, a blackberry bush, which has put on leaves and flowers, and a water-oak, which is about two inches in circumference. We are told that there are several other trees of the kind in that part of the city.

LIVE AND LEARN!—It is estimated that there are over two thousand million chickens hatched in the United States every year. But not more than half of these chicks reach the size when they are fit to market. The pip, gapes, cholera, etc., kill millions of young chickens every year. These diseases can be cured by the use of Phenol Sodique. For sale by druggists and general storekeepers. See advertisement.

Cambria Freeman.

EBENSBURG, PA.,
FRIDAY, - - - APRIL 28, 1882.

MR. PARNELL arrived in Dublin from France on last Monday evening and was loudly cheered at the depot, but avoided an ovation as much as possible. He at once entered a cab and was driven direct to Kilmainham jail, his release on parole having lasted two weeks.

WHEN Gov. Crittenden hired Bob and Chas. Ford "to bring in Jesse James dead or alive," a good many persons questioned his sanity. If however, he was sane then he is clearly a "crank" now, inasmuch as he signed a petition asking Mr. Arthur to appoint Phœbe Couzzens, another Missouri production, one of the Utah Commissioners.

A RED HOT Arthur and Cameron paper is to be immediately established in Philadelphia. The reason for this new departure is that Mr. Arthur has now no newspaper organ in that city, no one of the prominent Republican papers having given him and his administration anything more than faint and timid praise. Cameron and Quay have therefore concluded that it was about time to start an organ to grind out music for themselves, and as soon as the necessary arrangements can be completed the first number of the paper will appear with Quay as its chief editor.

MR. ARTHUR, instead of nominating Judge Taft, of Ohio, to be Minister to England, as it was believed at Washington he intended doing, sent his name to the Senate last week as Minister to Austria. An American envoy to that country has very little business of importance to engage his attention, and Taft can lead the same easy life in Vienna as his predecessors have done. Mr. Arthur at the same time nominated Nicholas Fish, of New York, son of Hamilton Fish, who was Grant's Secretary of State, to be Minister to Belgium, and the inevitable Adam Badeau, who wrote a one-sided and lying military life of Grant, to be Consul General at Havana. Each of these nominations shows the hand of Mr. Arthur's guide, counsellor and friend, Gen. Grant.

CONGRESSMAN SAMUEL H. MILLER, of the Mercer district, in this State, in the discussion on a bill on Monday last to increase the police force of Washington, asserted, "without fear of contradiction," that when the soldiers from Pennsylvania voted in the field they cast ten Republican ballots to one Democratic ballot, and pointing to ex-Governor Curtin in his seat, Miller, to use a vulgar phrase, forthwith proceeded to "cut off more than he could chaw," by saying: "I know the fact that when the gentleman from Pennsylvania ran for Governor in 1863 as a Republican, the soldiers voted for him twenty to one." "In 1863," Governor Curtin replied, "the soldiers from Pennsylvania in the field did not have a right to vote, and I did not receive a single vote from them." The subsequent proceedings of that day's session interested Samuel H. Miller no more.

THE name of no Democrat in the State has been more widely or favorably mentioned in connection with the nomination of Congressman-at-large by the Democratic State convention than that of William H. Breslin, the well known and able editor of the Lebanon Advertiser. If long and undeviating support of the principles of the Democratic party constitutes a valid claim upon its rati tude and a right to share in its honors, as it most certainly does, Mr. Breslin's nomination would be as appropriate as it is well deserved. All other things being equal, we have always thought that a Democrat who has battled with the party, in season and out of season, in a strong minority county, possesses claims upon it which ought to be respected. It don't require much of an effort to be a Democrat over in Berks county, but some courage is required to take a stand of that kind just over the line in Lebanon.

THE Altoona Radical in its last week's issue, in attempting to explain a "singular fact," got the two Chandlers, Zach, of Michigan, and Bill, of New Hampshire, badly mixed, so far, at least, as the office of Secretary of the Interior is concerned, It was correct as to the cabinet office held by the dead Michigander, but wrong as to the one now filled by him of the "Granite State." These two Chandlers are not related to each other by blood, so far as we know, but are brothers in political infamy, Zach being the first man, on the morning after the Presidential election in 1876, to put in motion the conspiracy to cheat Tilden out of his election, and Bill being one of the visiting "statesmen" who went down to Florida and aided in falsely and fraudulently manipulating the vote of that State in favor of Hayes. He is now, by the grace of President Arthur, Secretary of the Navy, and one of his constitutional advisers.

THE Legislature of Virginia adjourned sine die on Saturday last, leaving Mahone thoroughly beaten at all points. When his Congressional district bill was defeated on Thursday of the previous week, his friends in the House passed a resolution of recess from Saturday until the 7th of June, and although the most desperate efforts were made by the Republican managers at Washington to get the two Republican State Senators who had been opposing Mahone's schemes to vote for it, they utterly failed in their purpose, and the resolution was therefore defeated when it came before that body on yesterday week, by a vote of 15 yeas to 18 nays, and a final adjournment took place, as above stated on Saturday. If Mahone, either by fair means or foul, can capture these two rebellious Senators during the summer, Cameron, whom he made Governor, will call an extra session to enable Mahone to accomplish his purpose, but in Virginia it is not thought that he can do so, the general belief being that his political career is fast approaching its end,

THE historic wrongs of Ireland, as well as the present unhappy condition of that oppressed country, were never more temperately, ably and eloquently discussed before a public audience than they were by Judge Jeremiah S. Black, in an address which he delivered in Baltimore on Tuesday evening of last week, before the State Council of the Irish Land League. Judge Black starts out in his address with the declaration that no American citizen has a right to be silent or passive when Ireland calls upon him to do something for her relief, and then having made the additional declaration that for fully seven centuries, except one short interval, Ireland has not been permitted to make any laws for the protection of her own people in their persons or property, he proceeds with a review of the cruel treatment of that "Island of Sorrows," by the British government, He declares that there is not now and never was any real union between England and Ireland, but merely a connection made by force; that England governs Ireland by special legislation made for her alone; that they are "pinned together with bayonets"; that Ireland is not governed either by the common of statute law of England, and that the exercise of an unbounded power by Parliament over her people has been a continued exhibition of the most heartless oppression that the world has ever witnessed. We will, hereafter, publish some choice extracts from his admirable address, limiting ourselves this week to the following:

"Moreover, we owe them (the Irish) a heavy debt, which we cannot repudiate without dishonor. They fought by our side on every battlefield of the Revolution, and after independence they assisted to frame our institutions. At least five times since then their exiles, settled among us, have aided to save our liberty from destruction. They helped in 1809 to rescue us from the clutches of Federalism, which was tearing out the vitals of our Government. Supported by them, we went through the blood and fire of 1812. They stood by Jackson in his desperate combat with a monster monopoly. At a later day, and in another crisis, uniting with the honest Germans and the decent part of our citizens, they gave us strength enough to repel the foulest assault that ruffianism and hypocrisy ever made upon religious freedom. They were foremost in the fight for the Union when assured that the object was simply to maintain the supremacy of the laws; and they had no share in that perjurious treachery which subverted the Government instead of defending it. They were faithful to the constitution when it had only seven friends in the Senate, and its avowed enemies were two to one in the lower House of Congress, when the President was impeached for a feeble effort to support it, and the Supreme Court itself dodged and faltered and hesitated to decide that a free citizen could not be arrested without a warrant, or hung without a trial. I speak of them as a body, and of their general behavior. Doubtless there are many individual exceptions, of which I know nothing. But upward of fifty years ago John Randolph said this: 'I have seen a white crow, and heard of black swans, but an Irish opponent of American liberty I never either saw or heard of.'"

IT was telegraphed from Washington to the Pittsburg Commercial a few days ago that "General Campbell, in reply to a number of letters from his constituents in Bedford, Blair, Cambria and Somerset counties, in regard to his acceptance of a renomination for Congress says that he will not make a fight for it, but will accept it if tendered." Certainly he will, and we would like to know who wouldn't. It is the same old story of office-holders, as well as of office-seekers, and recalls the case of a man who once resided in a village in this section of the county, who, when asked if he was an applicant for postmaster, replied: "I'm not going to make much of a fight for it, but if the people of the place insist on me taking it, I'll do so." He wasn't insisted upon. We have nothing to say about Gen. Campbell being again a candidate, as that is his own business and not ours, but as he is usually a very positive man in his declarations, why didn't he say, "I will," or "I won't" without imitating the thimble-rig game of so many and always anxious politicians, familiarly known as, 'now you see it, and now you don't.' Speaking of Gen. Campbell, reminds us of the fact that last week, when the question was before the House for the admission of Cannon, Mormon, or Campbell, Gentile, to a seat as the delegate from Utah, he voted with a majority of the Democrats and against the Republicans in favor of giving the seat to Cannon, not because Cannon has four wives, so called, and Campbell has only one, but on the plain and conclusive gound that Cannon received eighteen thousand votes and Campbell only fifteen hundred. For that vote he deserves credit, the other question as to whether Cannon ought to be allowed to retain his seat owing to his polygamous practices being a proper subject for after consideration.

AS SOON as Bob and Charles Ford, the murderers of Jesse James, were released from prison, by Governor Crittenden's pardon, on the day after they were sentenced to be hung, Bob was arrested by the Sheriff of Ray county, Missouri, on a warrant charging him with the murder of Wood Hite, one of Jesse's gang, whose body was found in an old well on the Ford farm, in the above named county. The two Fords assert that Gov. Crittenden promised them a full pardon for all past crimes if they would take Jesse James "dead of alive," but the Governor indignantly denies this. Jesse's widow went to St. Joseph a few days after he was killed to get his pistols and Winchester rifles from the Marshal of that city, the assortment being large and valued at $400. Mrs. James, who, if Charles Ford tells the truth, was the "head devil" of the James gang, declares that what she knows about Jesse will never be made public, and pays a tribute to his memory by mildly saying: "If the officers had just left Jesse alone he would have lived all right, and would have been an honor to his country."

DON CAMERON, while in Philadelphia a few days ago, in reply to an inquisitive individual who was trying to "pump" him in regard to his political plans in this States, said: "My friends, and those who know me, say that I never recede when a position is once taken." This means, of course, that what has been long known as Cameron's State ticket, with Beaver at its head, will be put through at the Harrisburg convention on the 10th of next month, in defiance of any and all efforts that may be made by the Independent Republicans to bring about a change in Cameron's programme.

OUR PHILADELPHIA LETTER.

PHILADELPHIA, April 25, 1882.

[Regular Correspondence of THE FREEMAN.]

DEAR FREEMAN—"Betty and the Baby" are getting dimes faster than the Garfield monument. They prefer that "pop" Mason should remain in the penitentiary. They are doing better without him.

If it is true that Hayes contributed $250 to the Garfield fund, still retains $199,750 of Tilden's salary.

The weather is not warm enough for Watterson to let Tilden's Presidential boom out of the inside pocket of his white flannel vest, but gentleman Geo. Pendleton has opened his Presidential bar room in Washington city, with Jno. Thompson as head waiter.

Old Alex Stephens is about to abandon soothsaying and retire to private life. Such being the case, I will take occasion to remark to the Presidential boom makers that Alexander might be boomed very considerably.

The Congressman-at-large boom seriously threatens to become boomerangy, so to speak.

The latest aesthetic contributed to this country by England is J. Umbo, Esq. He comes with only one trunk.—Umbo monopolized the papers during the past week. What a blessed thing that Jumbo didn't Jumboverboard on his ocean voyage.

SPARROWS WORSE THAN THE CHINESE.

If giving relief to a few people on the Pacific coast by driving away the Chinese laborer is an important American issue, how much more important is it that the great bulk of the American people should be relieved of the English destroyer. Unfortunately, the American people have a more damaging and dangerous foreign element in their midst than the Chinamen. Mr. Page, Mr. March, and other distinguished anti-Chinese statesmen, do not appear to have taken into consideration the danger threatening us through that foreign bully, the English sparrow. In their patriotic zeal to check immigration from the Flowery Kingdom they have overlooked our most grievious foreign foe, that British bully, the sparrow. Upon reading the evils, that have been so eloquently portrayed by eminent statesmen, as arising from Chinese immigration, I have looked up some scraps of history upon the evils resulting from the importation to our shores of the English sparrow, and I propose to lay them before the readers of the FREEMAN, that they may know how unfortunate for American civilization and prosperity it was that in an ungarded moment we permitted to enter into the very citadel of our liberties—a foreign bully. Disregarding George Washington's farewell admonition to avoid entangling alliances with foreigners, we opened our homes and hearts and invited the alien sparrow to become one of us. He came, he saw, and it is only a question of time and, I fear, a very short time, when he shall have conquered. He is on us, and a greater than the Chinese problem is, what are we to do with the sparrow? There is no ray of hope that I can discern on the horizon of the future, unless it is in the united massive intellects of our National and State legislators closing with the sparrow for the mastery. In different parts of the country he has been outlawed, declared an intolerable nuisance. Upon this grave and important subject, the Macon, (Ga.) Telegraph and Messenger says:

In the olden times of large plantations, crowded corn cribs and smoke houses, fat mules and homesteads whose hospitable doors swung wide open at the approach of stranger or friend, the cotton worm was an insignificant creature. If he ate up the production of many broad acres which yielded a staple worth from four to eight cents per pound, the deficit thus created was easily met by hoisting a negro or two on the market block and the generous, thriftless, kind and princely Southern planter drifted along for years, untill his time came, and then his son drifted along after him pretty much in the same fashion. But after the storm and wreckage of civil war, when Cuffee had become a statesman, and the prince a pauper, when cotton was worth 46 cents a pound, the cotton catterpillar suddenly loomed up into vast and dangerous proportions.

Inquiry—anxious inquiry—was made as to the means of destroying this foe that thrust himself between the farmer and the means of restoring his broken fortunes, and experiment after experiment followed inquiry. At such a crisis some evil genius bethought him of the English sparrow. The thought leaped into purpose as the electric current dashes from the engine to the burner, purses were made up, and by the next steamer plowing her course to Liverpool went orders for the little bird which was to catch and devour every worm that dared approach with voracious appetite and felonious intent a graceful and leafy stalk of cotton. Unhappy suggestion! Unfortunate day!

We might as well have imported a lot of gutter-snipes from the lanes and perlieus of London to lead the Sunday-school classes of our children as to have imported this bird to engage in the useful and necessary occupation of catterpillar killing. Bred for many years in the streets of London, he had learned to live by his wits, to despise honest labor and was accomplished in villainy and trickery."

The pugnacious red bird and the valient sap-sucker stood their ground for a few rounds, but finally fled before the sturdy blows of the belligerant English bully. But though masters of the field, after having driven its rightful owners away, the sparrow did not occupy the beautiful boxes made expressly for its comfort and convenience, but immediately betook himself and followers down to the bay, where he has lived in chimney cracks, crevices and gutters, and increased with alarming rapidity. And to-day not a chirp of birds can be heard anywhere within Forsyth park, which was once melodious with song. This is but a fair sample of his behavior elsewhere. He has beaten every bird away from every neighborhood where it has pleased him to take up his abode, and a native American songster can only be found in the dim recesses and fastnesses of river swamps.

Domiciled in neat, tasteful houses in the beautiful park of Savannah he went to work industriously to increase his numbers up to the war making point. When this was reached, with a note of warning, he pounced upon the mocking birds, the cat birds, the blue jays, the jorees that had for many years made their homes amid the trees and shrubbery, and in a day they were driven into an exile as terrible to them as was the rude world to Adam and Eve when they stepped out forever from the beauties of the garden of Eden.

The New York Sun says of the English sparrow:

"But in New York proper, of which he is now a naturalized citizen, he is the feathered Bohemian, the gammon of the gutter, always able to rise above it on emergency by his wings, but generally hugging it for the sake of its cheap and easy commissariat. Hopping gaily and portly about the streets like other Bohemians for his living, it is no wonder that he has become a regular little New Yorker, with infinite smartness and much pluck, and yet with a certain vulgar impudence in the cock of his tail and the poise of his head, a noisy, sagacious, amusing little citizen, independent in his manners, irregular in his habits, quarrelsome in his disposition, and fickle in his friendship."

What are we to do with the foreign bully? In Chattanooga they have turned the small boy with his toy pistol on him. If the American small boy with his toy pistol was turned on him he would go, it is true, but what protection would there be for human eyesight, limb, or life. For myself, I contemplate with fear—yea, unfeigned horror—the dernier resort of turning the small boy upon him. What are we to do? There is no ray of hope that I can see in the future. The lookout is dark and gloomy, indeed. There is no use in seeking for relief from his ravages by applying to the massive intellects at Washington, for this foreign bully has filled every nook, cranny and crevice in the capitol. You can see him setting on the trees on the Capitol grounds, cocking his eyes on the Senators and Congressmen as contemptuously and as defiantly as a street gamin with a cigar in his mouth contemplates his natural enemy, a fierce and portly policeman. No respectable community or society will prosper as long as it harbors a thief, a bully and a rake, for the sparrow is as great a Mormon as Henry Ward Beecher or Brigham Young, and sets all social laws at defiance. O! that at an unguarded moment we admitted the English sparrow to enter into the very citadel of our liberties. The sparrow question is one that I am unable to solve. I lay it down with the conviction that human intelligence and human ingenuity can not solve it. It is devoutly to be prayed for, that our illustrious anti-Chinese statesman will turn their attention from the Mongolian to the sparrow. Let the gentle and peaceful Flowery Kingdom celestial come, but deliver us from the belligerant British bully.

COULD STAND ROBESON BUT NOT CHANDLER.

Notwithstanding the doubt the Democratic Congressmen entertained about the morals of Robeson's ship building character, they would have helped him carry out his $66,000,000 steal, had not Chandler come in the way. The naval scheme, evolved from the fertile brain of Secor Robeson, to construct six steel ships of war, at a cost of $11,000,000 each, was a nice patriotic scheme, and the Democratic patriots were getting along swimmingly until Chandler was named for the Navy. From that hour the big $66,000,000 scheme lagged. The trustiest Democratic patriots could have stood Robeson, but when it came to Chandler they were abashed. They were afraid of the grand possibilities that might be carried out by that statesman and Navy yard manipulator.—There was at once great joy in the lobby. Every shipyard was lavishly represented in anticipation of the big things to come.

THE JUNKETING FUNERAL.

The majority report of the committee to audit the expenses of the illness, death and funeral of President Garfield is a disgrace to every man that signed it. The reckless folly, the downright robbery of admitting the junketing funeral expenses bill of $8,000 without an exhibition of its items, and the giving of princely rewards from the people's money to physicians and others whose work was of questionable value, was robbery of the meanest character. As to the physicians, Dr. Bliss, who got $25,000 Agnew and Hamilton, who got $15,000 each, Reyburn, Boynton and Mrs. Dr. Edson, who got $10,000 apiece, no quack who practices under a bought diploma could have done worse. Until the dissecting knife told its humiliating story, President Garfield's medical attendants were utterly ignorant of the nature of his injury, beyond the simple knowledge that it was a gun-shot wound. There is not a man or woman of average intelligence in this broad land but knows this to be a fact. While the doctors were cutting in one direction the work of death was going on in another. From that fatal 2d of July until the 19th of September, when the end came, the track of the assassin's bullet had not been discovered by Drs. Bliss, Agnew, Hamilton, Reyburn, Boynton and Edson. There is everything to condemn in this majority report. It is a downright robbery, and a disgrace to every man who signed it. If the men who favor this barefaced grab had any sense of honor they would hang their heads in shame. The idea of making two discarded physicians, Barnes and Woodward enlarged pensioners upon the nation for life is perhaps the most ridiculous of all rieiculous features of the grab. The people of the whole country would freely sustain a liberality consistent with justice in providing for the expenses of Garfield's sickness and funeral, but honesty and justice fades out the long list of extravagant expenses.

G. N. S.

P. S.—I learn that Dr. Bliss' stock speculations on Garfield's wound has panned out so rich that he threatens a European tour.

ARE YOU GOING WEST.—Parties who intend moving to the West, North-West, or South-West this spring, should consider the inducements offered by the Penn'a Co., operating the Fort Wayne Route, Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railway, and Great Pan Handle Route, Pittsburg, Cincinnati and St. Louis Railroad, in the way of time, connections, rates and facilities for making journeys safe and comfortable.

These roads extend (the former in a northwestern direction, and the latter directly west and southwest) from Pittsburg to Fort Wayne, Chicago, Indianapolis, Cincinnati and St. Louis, making correct connections in Union Depots with first-class Express Trains, running to all important points in Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, Kansas, Tennessee, Colorado and Texas.

By these roads you avoid many change of cars, you reach your destination quicker, you escape all omnibus transfers, you save time and money, you ride over best railroacs in the West, at the same rates offered by inferior routes, you meet polite and attentive agents and train men who are instructed to look after your interests and welfare, you have your baggage checked through to the point you are going to, and you get the best that is at the lowest price.

You do not have to pay anything extra for these comforts. The rates via Pan Handle Route or Fort Wayne Route are always as low as those of any other route. If you have made up your mind to move West, if you are going West to prospect or to visit friends, call upon or write to any agent of these lines or to the undersigned, who will cheerfully supply you with maps, time tables, rates for freight and any desired information. A DASTARDLY DEED.—A dastardly deed was committed in Reading by burglars at an early hour Friday morning. About 3.15 A. M. thieves visited the premises of Mrs. Ernestine Long, 137 South Seventh street. She is a widow fifty years of age and keeps a small confectionery store in a small frame house. They gained entrance by forcing the front shutters, and preceeding up stairs to an unoccupied room, broke open a chest and secured $145 in cash and other articles. The burglars then went down stairs into the yard, where they saturated the rear portion of the building with coal oil. Three small frame houses are in the same row and the rear of all these were drenched with oil and then set on fire in several places. The flames were started directly under the bedrooms of the occupants of the three houses. The fire burned vigorously, and in a short time the six occupants would have been smothered and burned, but fortunately one of the young women was awakened and she gave the alarm. By hard work all the occupants were safely led out of their rooms to places of safety. The fire was extinguished after considerable damage had been done. The police have information that three men were seen in the neighborhood about the time of the fire. There is no clue nor motive known.

A CONDUCTOR'S PREMONITION.—The Altoona Tribune relates that a singular premonition took possession of the conductor of the train wrecked at Wilmore a week ago last Sunday. The train of forty cars was made up in that city, and among the number was one loaded with powder. It was placed near the end of the train when the conductor remarked that he was afraid that something would happen to the powder car in that position, and accordingly had it shifted to the middle of the train. The train proceeded on its way, and had reached a point near Wilmore when another train crushed into its rear, breaking more than a dozen cars, which were mixed in inextricable confusion with the hot and steaming locomotive in the general wreck. Had the powder car been allowed to remain in the position it first occupied in the train a terrific explosion would have been the result. Railroad men are not more superstitious than the majority of people, but they regard the conductor's premonition as coming from other sources than that usually within the reach of mortals.

Terrible Tornado in Fayette County.

DESTROYING CHURCHES, DWELLINGS AND BARNS AND BLOWING PEOPLE TO DEATH.

A most destructive cyclone passed over the northern end of Fayette county late on Wednesday afternoon of last week. The storm first struck the west end of Bullskin township, in the northern part of the county, and swept in a northeasterly direction, devastating everything before it. Houses, barns, orchards, timber, trees and fences were all leveled for a space of several miles in length and about two hundred yards in width. The first building to sustain damage was the Mennonite church, the roof being carried far away. Little Abner Jarrett, who was riding by, was lifted from his horse and hurled violently in the air, landing many yards distant. He had hardly left his horse when the latter was struck with heavy timbers and killed. Sherrick's barn was next unroofed. When the hurricane reached Pennsville it demolished the Disciples' church and destroyed the houses and barns of Farmers Miller, Lyons and Wright. Messrs. Detwiler, Atkinson and Frebe also saw their barns, orchards and fences swept away. John Bundorf's house was unturned, and he himself perhaps fatally injured. Joseph Glassburn's house was utterly destroyed and his wife and five children dangerously hurt.

IN THE TRACK OF THE GALE.

The terrible gale then struck the house of John Winegrove and made sad havoc of it. His wife was found by her husband lying dead, many yards away, with her infant child at her breast. The child was unhurt. The next thing to meet Mr. Winegrove's gaze were his five children, scattered about, all in flames and fighting both fire and storm. Their lives were saved. The children aver that the flames came from the cloud that burst over them. Jerry Stauffer and his two daughters were badly hurt, but how badly cannot yet be learned. The extent of the destruction of property cannot be told now, but the devastation seems almost complete. Several other deaths are hourly expected and the wail of mourning in the stricken district is heard on every side. Accurate descriptions by eye witnesses are hard to obtain, for the storm was so rapid in its progress that the work of destruction was over before the frightened people knew it. It appeared in the shape of a funnel. Hailstones as large as a teacup fell during the progress of the storm.

FURTHER DETAILS OF THE DISASTER.

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 21.—A dispatch from Pennsville, Pa., says: The cyclone-swept district is a scene of devastation and distress, of waste and ruin the like of which has rarely before been known. The storm that unheralded burst suddenly on this community about 4 o'clock on Wednesday evening was of short duration and very limited in its track. It moved from southwest to northeast, going over the northern portion of Fayette county.

The little town of Pennsville is situated about four miles north of Connellsville, on the Southwest Railway, and is in sight of the devastated track, the storm having swept just north of the village. The hurricane so suddenly burst upon the people and was so soon over that few can give any satisfactory account of its nature. The wind, rain and hail poured out of a dark blue, funnel shaped cloud, which traveled at an almost incredible speed. The first serious outbreak here was in the western part of this township, where it struck the Mennonite church, about one mile west of this town and unroofed it. A short distance from this church, Abner Jarrett, a boy 10 years old, riding along on horseback, was carried some fifty yards by the force of the wind, and his horse killed by some timbers that were dashed upon it. His brother Neil, a young man, was hurled through the air in the same way for a long distance. The storm struck the farm of A. N. Sherrick, on the crest of the hill near Pennsville, destroying the orchard, unroofing the barn, and passing on to the house, leveling chimneys, fences and trees to the ground.

The gale crossed southwest to the Pennsylvania Railroad, and destroyed timber and trees on the Wilson, Boyle and Playford farms. It unroofed the Disciple church and otherwise seriously damaged it. On the Mt. Pleasant road the house of a widow named Miller was demolished and her barn carried so far that it has not yet been found. W. C. Lyons' property was also damaged to the amount of $1,000. John S. Detwiller's barn was unroofed and his house badly damaged, as was also the house, barn and orchard of G. D. Atkinson. Half a mile further on E. Herninger and H. S. Fretz suffered similar losses.

The elements seemed to gather strength as the storm traveled on. Before it reached Mount's Creek it took an easterly course, and here the deadliest work began. John Bundorff's house was the first to succumb. Strange to relate the lower story of the house was swept instantly away, and the upper portion then came tumbling down. Mr. Bundorff was outside, and when he saw the storm approaching he sought shelter inside. He was, however, overtaken and whirled about in the air at the mercy of the gale. His dwelling place was rendered a shapeless mass of ruins. He relates that rails, rubbish and timber could be seen flying through the air as if they came from the clouds. Mr. Bundorff was struck by one of these missiles just below the small of the back. It penetrated an artery and it is feared the wound is fatal.

Mr. Joseph Glassburn's house was utterly destroyed, as was also his barn. The last he saw of the roof of the latter it was going up the mountain at lightning speed. Nothing was left standing on his farm. Mr. Glassburn's wife and five of the children are badly hurt.

A half mile from Glassburn's the storm struck the house of John Wingrove. He was about 500 yards from his home, driving thither a load of oats. He leaped from the wagon and ran towards his house. Fifty yards from the house his wife lay dead, with her babe of 11 months clasped tightly to her bosom. She had seized her youngest born at the instant the storm struck the building and had been hurled so far that the violence deprived her of life. The babe was unharmed. Mr. Wingrove's other children were trying frantically to extinguish the fire, which had caught in their clothing and was then consuming them. They assert that the fire burst upon them from a cloud overhead. Alexander and Harry, two of the boys, aged 11 and 13 years respectively have since died of their injuries. The other children will probably not recover.

About a mile further on J. Stauffer's two houses and a barn were leveled to the ground. Mrs. Stauffer was seriously injured, as were also her two daughters. The last point in the track, so far as we can ascertain, was two miles beyond Stauffer's at Hinton Kyapsnider's, whose house was carried away.

CURED A 20 YEARS' INVALID.

No. 422 Eautaw Street Baltimore, Maryland.—DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—My wife was a hopeless invalid for nearly twenty years. Your "Favorite Prescription" has cured her. Gratefully, R. T. MCCAY.

DEMOLISHED BY A TORNADO.—A New Orleans telegram of April 23d says: The storm along the Chicago, St. Louis and New Orleans Railroad yesterday destroyed the town of Monticello. Only three houses in the entire place were left standing. Ten persons were killed instantly—five whites and five colored. The names of the whites are as follows: H. Wethersby, Chancery Clark, Allen Sharp, Mrs. Cannon and baby and Rev. S. W. Dale. Out of a population of 150 very few escaped without some injury. Between fifteen and twenty persons were seriously injured, some it is thought fatally. The store of Mr. Cohn, after having been blown down, was fired by lightning and entirely consumed. There is not a tree left standing in the place. Samuel Hickman's fine residence, four miles soushwest of Monticello, was entirely demolished, but no one was hurt. The track of the cyclone is estimated at half a mile. The people are left entirely destitute. Our citizens have subscribed liberally towards their relief.—Several wagon-loads of provisions with other suitable things were sent them to-day, to be followed by more to-morrow.

A VARIED PERFORMANCE.

Many wonder how Parker's Ginger Tonic can perform such varied cures, thinking it essence of ginger, when in fact it is made from many valuable medicines which act beneficially on every diseased organ.

AT Poughkeepsie, N. Y., on Friday, four Swedes and two Finlanders, five of whom were employed on the West Shore Railroad, put off in a small boat to go to a boarding house on the other side of the river. The wind was blowing a gale and the waves were running high. When about in the middle of the stream the boat capsized and four of the party were drowned. John Tompson and Albert Holmes, hearing their cries, put out with a boat and rescued the other two, who were clinging to the bottom of the boat. Three schooners were near the scene of the accident when it occurred, but their crews paid no attention to the cries of the drowning men.

WHEN I publicly testified that I had been cured of a terrible skin humor by the Cuticura Remedies, I did so that others might be cured, and do not regret the time given to answering inquiries.—Hon. Wm. Taylor, Boston.

—The tramp arrested in Bedford county a few days ago on suspicion of being the lecherous scoundrel who feloniously assaulted three young women on a recent occasion in Somerset county, has been discharged from custody. A number of persons who had seen the guilty party, and one of the women whom he had assaulted, were taken to see the prisoner, but one and all failed to identify him.

—A most remarkable accident happened on Friday at the Baugh steam forge, in Spring Wells, a suburb of Detroit. An employe named Joseph Kwyer was having a friendly scuffle with another young man and losing his balance threw out one leg directly under the great steam power shears used in cutting iron. At the same instant the shears descended and cut his leg off at the knee, completely severing every bone and tissue. The unfortunate man was taken to a hospital and lies in a critical condition.

—During the performance of Batchellor & Doris' circus at Phœnixville, Pa., on Saturday evening, Mlle. Le Fevre, gymnast, while performing on the flying rings, fell a distance of forty feet, striking heavily on the outside of the ring. The accident was occasioned by the giving way of the crane which upheld the rings. The lady had almost completed her act when the rings gave way. She was carried into the dressing room, where a doctor, who was in the audience, reported the injuries serious, but not necessarily fatal.

—Sydney Smith being ill, his physician advsed him to "take a walk upon an empty stomach." "Upon whose?" asked Sidney. Still better steps to take would be the purchase of Dr. R. V. —A New Orleans man has invented an ingenious machine by which he claims that he is able to report over 200 words per minute. The sounds of the language are represented by mathematical permutations represented on the instrument, which can be readily learned. The inventor is a telegraph expert, and claims that the speed in messages can be increased from 50, the present average, to 200, and with a greater degree of accuracy than is attained by the Morse system. The machine is the result of three years labor, and promises to create a revolution in the telegraphic world.

—Charlotte O'Neill, of Buffalo, aged 14, jumped over the cliff near the falls at Niagara on Friday morning and lodged in a projecting tree about thirty feet from the top. The only way of rescuing her was for some one to go down over the cliff, a most hazardous undertaking, there being a sheer descent of over 200 feet, with jagged rocks at the bottom. A hackman named Metcalf volunteered to do it. The driving lines of several teams that were standing by were tied together and fastened under his shoulders. On reaching the girl he fastened the lines to her in a similar manner, and she was hauled up only slightly injured. Metcalf followed after the lines were let down again. Temporary insanity was given by Miss O'Neill as the cause of her rash act.

—In West Somerville, near Boston, on Thursday last, Mrs. Mary Russell, aged seventy-nine, was killed by her son-in-law, Edwin R. Prescott, aged sixty-six. Mrs. Russell's daughter, who is Prescott's second wife, went to Boston Thursday forenoon, and on her return was met at the door of her house by her husband, who told her he had just killed her mother. The woman, horrified, ran to the police station. Officers, going to the house, found in a back shed the body of Mrs. Russell, with her skull fractured, her face crushed in, and her throat cut from ear to ear. The murderer was secured and taken to jail. The tragedy created intense excitement, the parties to it moving in the highest social circles. Prescott was for many years a dry goods merchant in Arlington and afterward in Cambridge, and amassed a fortune.

—John Gebring and wife and Louis Wilbert and wife, of Parma, near Cleveland, O., were committed to jail in the latter city last Saturday night on the charge of murdering Alexander Humbel, a farmer and neighbor to them. Gehring keeps a saloon and the Wilberts live with him. Humbel got in a row there several days ago while intoxicated and was assaulted by the prisoners. He was thrown out of the front door, his head pounded to a jelly with a beer mallet, and his body bruised frightfully with stones. He lived several days, but died Saturday night, and warrants were immediately got out. The particulars of the murder are horrible. Humbel's hands were held behind him by one while his face and body were pounded by others of the party. The prisoners were prominent in the village, and Humbel was a hard working, honest man. He leaves a wife and seven children.

—Robert and Morris Andrews left their home in Greenfield, near Carbondale, Pa., on Wednesday, to go into the Salem Woods on a hunting expedition. They hunted without food or rest until Thursday night. On Friday morning, Robert, hearing a rattling sound in the bushes, which he supposed to be game, took up his rifle and blazed away. On visiting the spot, he found the dead body of Morris, the charge having entered his head. Robert, in his excitement, took the body on his shoulder, and carried it home and hid it in the barn under the hay. Inquiry was made for Morris, and Robert declared that he had not seen him since they left home. The family noticed his uneasiness, and believed some great trouble preyed upon his mind. A neighbor's children, with Robert's two small sisters, were playing in the barn on Saturday, and one of the little girls, in attempting to pass from the hay mow to the ground floor, placed her hand upon the dead face of her brother, and carried the terrible news to her parents. Robert turned deathly pale, and being asked as to the cause of his brother's death, related the story as given above. He is now out of his mind.

THE MOST obstinate cases of Catarrh and Hay Fever are cured by the use of Elys' Cream Balm, the only agreeable remedy.—Price 50 cents.

GRAPE CULTURE AND WINE IN NEW JERSEY.—Mr. A. Speer, of New Jersey, one of the largest grape producers in the East, commenced, but a few years ago in a small way, to make wine from currants, blackberries, and other fruits. He now controls large vineyards of the Oporto grape, his Mount Prospect Vineyards are at Passaic, N. J., from which his famous Port Grape Wine is made, and which chemists and physicians say rivals the world for its beneficial effects on weakly and aged persons, and consumptives. For sale at E. James' drug store, Ebensburg.

FIVE men, a few days ago, attempted to rob a Topeka and Santa Fe train near Rincon, N. M. They got into the baggage instead of the express car, and before they could rectify their mistake and get into the right car, the train men and passengers appeared in such numbers that the robbers fled. The engine and baggage and express cars were thrown from the track, the fireman was killed, and the engineer and Wells, Fargo & Co.'s messenger were badly injured. Two hundred thousand dollars in bullion was on the train.

COLORLESS AND COLD.—A young girl deeply regretted hat she was so colorless and cold. Her face was too white, and her hands and feet felt as though the blood did not circulate. After one bottle of Hop Bitters had been taken she was the rosiest and healthiest girl in town, with a vivacity and cheerfulness of mind gratifying to her friends.

Letter from an Irish-American Pris

The New York World of Sunday last pub lished a letter from D. McSweeney, a natur alized citizen of this country, now confined in jail at Dundalk, Ireland, in which he sents a charge made against him by the New York Times, whose editor is an English and also refers to the course of Mr. Low the American Minister, in plain and language. Mr. McSweeny is a California, and his case may be taken fair sample of the arbitrary power by the British government over American citizens in Ireland. His letter is as follows:

To the Editor of The World.

SIR: The Dublin Freeman's Journal an article from the New York Times on the meeting held in that city express pathy with American citizens now in British tiles, in which I find the words "McSweeney citing to murder." As I am the only that name who has been a victim of the [illegible] policy of the brutal British Minister [illegible] this country I took my stand by the expressed my sympathy for them in their for existence and when "sentence of death" being passed on them. A special detective once detailed by the Government to He had strict orders not to lose sight of followed me wherever I went, even into he attended all the meetings at which I took down carefully every word I said breaking out of the agitation until I was this dungeon about eleven months ago. this system of espionage, spies and paid sional informers, the British Government able to charge me with any crime. The the warrant under which I was arrested was "an illegal meeting" (that is, a quiet, peaceable, constitutional meeting, held purpose of protesting against [illegible] this country, and asking the British Gov not to carry off all the food out of the When Mr. Lowell returned my certificate zenship stating that I was only a "natura citizen of the United States" and [illegible] can citizen, and that in his opinion it for me to claim protection from the United Government, adding with a sneer that my geon was not worse than [illegible] were confined," this was hard enough lating for an American, but it remained American editor, who could not known any thing about the circumstances case, to inflict a sting which sank deeper heart in this loathsome dungeon than ment the bloodthirsty British Government inflict. I asked myself the question: "Are scendents of the Tory traitors in America fought against their own country [illegible] thy with England?" Are they aiding them in their murderous policy famine; and, above all, are they them to imprison American citizens no crime?" With regard to the of the New York Times, that I was guilty crime, I will say that if the man correctly reported his charge cowardly; and that if I is, providing the "Coercion act" I will give the Times man an opportunity vincing a New York jury whether I of any crime, much less of "inciting

—The largest new stock of men's fine dress and business suits, as well as clothing of all kind for boys and children, that has been opened in Altoona this Spring, has just been received by S. Sprankle & Son, whose store is now filled to overflowing with the latest styles and most desirable suits for the season. Call early and secure the best bargains in clothing that Altoona can furnish.

—We had the pleasure on Wednesday last of a visit, only too brief, from two of Wilmore's most prominent and energetic young citizens, Messrs. R. C. J. McGuire and H. M. Kephart, who reported everything serene in the ancient borough, and also rejoiced in the fact that good health and a fair share of prosperity were among the blessings they themselves are enjoying. May it be ever thus with both of them.

—While Mrs. A. J. Christy and one or two of her children, of Loretto, were out driving on last Sunday afternoon, the horse fell and broke the buggy and badly demoralized the harness, but fortunately none of the occupants of the vehicle were thrown out or in any way injured. The accident occurred while ascending the hill above Bengele's hotel, and is thought to have been caused by the horse choking in consequence of the collar being too small.

—Our young friend Ed. H. Flick, of Carrolltown, who has been attending school at St. Vincent's College, Westmoreland county, for several months past, returned to Ebensburg on Tuesday last and once more settled down to the study of the law, to say nothing of the profits, in the office of A. V. Barker, Esq. Ed. is one of the most intelligent and deserving young men in the county, and his success in the profession he has chosen, if life and health are spared him, is only a matter of time.

—A very destructive fire occurred in Keytesville, Missouri, on the afternoon of last Sunday week, destroying a large frame hotel, in which the fire originated, and several other buildings, the aggregate loss amounting to forty thousand dollars. Mr. Thomas Dougherty, a son of Mr. John Dougherty, of this place, and who is a resident of Keytesville, suffered a loss of about $300, a small frame building owned by him being one of the buildings destroyed. His residence was outside of the burnt district.

—Our worthy young friend and patron, Mr. W. P. Mullen, of St. Augustine, and also a member of the firm of R. W. Christy and Co., of Altoona, took to himself a wife at the early hour of 6 o'clock on last Tuesday morning in the person of Miss Belle Ruffner, one of Blairsville's most amiable and handsome daughters. May their pathway through life be neither Ruffner thorny, but should a few Mullen stalks spring up by the way we doubt not they will add very much to their comfort and happiness.

—A regular knock down and drag out occurred in Carrolltown on last Tuesday evening, and both of the participants are said to have been pretty badly used up. One of the parties is engaged in business in Carrolltown, and the other, if we mistake not, hails from Susquehanna township. The latter got the worst beating of the two, his assailant, we are told, having struck him several times with a poker. A lawsuit will probably be the end as whisky was no doubt the beginning of the trouble.

—Mr. James J. Murphy, the courteous and energetic proprietor of Star Clothing Hall, and owner of the well known Mansion House hotel, Johnstown, which has been so long and admirably conducted by that prince of landlords, Mr. Joseph Shoemaker, is having a large three story addition put to said hotel, and when the work is completed, the Mansion House will stand without a rival in Johnstown as to size, convenience and general adaptability to the accommodation of the traveling public.

—Mr. Joseph Gutwald, the well known West ward butcher, brought to town the early part of this week two two-year-old steers which will be served to his customers in the shape of steaks, roasts, etc., in due course of time. They were bought from Mr. Archie Stewart, of Indiana county, and the two weighed 3,600 pounds, or an average of 1,800 pounds each. In all respects they are the equals of the cattle brought here and slaughtered by Mr. Gutwald just before Easter, and that is saying a good deal.

—For the last three months or more our readers, no doubt, have observed in these columns a brief notice about Chas. Roberts' store and his stock so complete, comprising many things needful and many things neat, and now we wish to remark that our worthy friend Chas. has a fine lot of hats which bear off the palm for beauty and cheapness, in which they'll compare with any stock of the kind either here or elsewhere. And it is well to remember, what you have likely conceived, that this stock is all new and has just been received.

—An old and dilapidated building at Wilmore in which Joseph Wherry and his wife and nine children have been domiciled for several years past, caught fire from a defective flue or stovepipe on last Monday evening and now the good people of that place, who rushed to the rescue and succeeded in extinguishing the flames before much damage was done, if damage could possibly be done to such a structure, are wondering among themselves whether it wouldn't have been just as well to have left the old rookery burn down and be done with it.

—Mr. Abe Brawley, who follows the butchering business at Manor Station, on the Pennsylvania Railroad, a few miles west of Greensburg, and who is a son of David Brawley, a former well known resident of this vicinity, but who now lives on a farm near New Salem, Westmoreland county, was robbed of about four hundred dollars, one night during the early part of last week, by some person who entered his sleeping room and carried off his pantaloons containing the money. The thief is strongly suspected, but whether any arrest has yet been made we are unable to state.

—When we inform our readers that Star Clothing Hall, 169 Clinton street, Johnstown, has just been filled to repletion with an immense stock of spring and summer clothing, gent's furnishing goods, etc., we are sure that none of them will need to be told that the goods therein contained are of the very best as to quality and the very cheapest as to price. For nearly if not fully thirty years Mr. Murphy, the proprietor of this popular clothing house, has maintained a reputation for selling honest goods at honest prices, and he has no intention to go back on his record now or at any time in the future.

—A "Farmers' Mutual Live Stock Protection Association" has been organized by citizens of Carrolltown and vicinity, and with such worthy and enterprising gentlemen as Benjamin Wertner for President, John Buck for Vice President, Andrew Strittmatter for Treasurer, J. J. Thomas for Secretary, Chas. Dunlap, S. P. Sylvertz and Nicholas Nagle for Auditors, and P. L. Eck, W. T. Gooderham and Jos. Bearer for Assessors, flanked as they are by such energetic men as Dr. J. J. Oatman, J. G. C. Bearer, A. Weakland, H. J. Eckenrode, John H. Hoover, and others of like ilk, there is no question but what the association will be well conducted and that all parties interested will find it a good thing to tie to. About forty head of horses were entered the same evening the company was organized.

—The death of Mr. Thomas Lynch, one of the oldest citizens of Altoona, which occurred on last Thursday morning, in the 83d year of his age, has removed from time to eternity a man who enjoyed in an eminent degree the respect and esteem of everybody who knew him. He was as honest and upright as he was industrious and peaceable, and during his long and useful life he was a model citizen, a faithful husband, a kind father, an obliging neighbor and a sincere Christian. His aged wife and three children, of whom our energetic friend, R. J. Lynch, of Altoona, is the youngest, the other two being Mrs. Mary Hopkins, with whom the deceased made his home, and Mrs. Rose Kearney, of Iowa, are left to mourn for a good husband and father. May God grant eternal rest to his soul.

—On Saturday last Judge Acheson, in the United States District Court at Pittsburgh, delivered his opinion in the case of the Assignees of William M. Lloyd against Thomas McCauley and others. The case was argued five or six weeks ago, and held under advisement by the Court, as we stated at the time, and the decision has now been rendered. It was a suit in equity, as will be remembered, brought by the assignees in bankruptcy of William M. Lloyd to set aside a mortgage given to the defendants, the plaintiffs claiming that it was fraudulent and an unlawful preference under the bankrupt law. The Court directed a decree to be drawn dismissing the bill in equity at the cost of the assignees. The homestead of Wm. M. Lloyd, in the vicinity of Altoona, is the property covered by the mortgage.

—The Ebensburg Normal Institute will open May 8th, as previously announced. An unusually large number of pupils have already been enrolled, and the prospects are very encouraging for the most successful Normal School that has ever been conducted in Ebensburg. The healthfulness and quietness for which our town is noted will add much to the comfort and success of the students. The managers, Messrs. Strayer and Riddle, are determined to do everything in their power for the advancement of all who may attend. Teachers and those preparing to teach should certainly avail themselves of this opportunity to attend a good school at home without incurring the additional expense of going elsewhere for that purpose. There is much need of a permanent school of the character of the Normal Institute in our county, and our teachers will certainly be benefitted by their attendance thereat.

—The annual election of officers of the Newman Literary and Dramatic Association of St. Francis' College, Loretto, took place on last Sunday evening, April 23d, with the following result: President, Neil McNelis; Vice President, John P. Dybew; Treasurer, George Coll; Recording Secretary, James Malarkey; Corresponding Secretary, Lewis J. Randall; Financial Secretary, Allen Ramsay; Librarian, Prof. F. J. Noel; Directors, Wm. J. O'Connell, Arthur Commiskey, Francis Bradley and P. J. Toole. The following were added by the President to the Executive Committee: James P. Greene, James Kelly and D. J. Darby; and to the Committee on Plays: Thomas J. Kilbride, J. T. Kearney, Daniel Macneal, Thomas Holloran and Thomas Hearn. The installation of officers will take place on next Sunday evening, and will be followed by a literary entertainment.

—It appears from some remarks made by Judge Dean at the Huntingdon county court, two weeks ago, when the question of granting license was before him, that there are only nineteen licensed hotels in that county—one hotel for about every seventeen hundred inhabitants. This is an exceptionally small number when compared with most of the other counties, and the wonder with us is how it happens that in a county containing so few taverns such a constant, bitter and unrelenting warfare can be kept up between the two divisions of the grand old Republican party, as any one can see for himself who reads the weekly issues of the Globe and Journal, the organs of the two rival factions. There must be some other cause than the nineteen hotel bars for the war to the knife and the knife to the hilt that has been raging for weeks between the friends of the Globe and the friends of the Journal, and all about the election of two delegates to the Republican State convention. What can it be?

—While a freight train was switching in some empty cars at Cokesville, between Blairsville and the Intersection, on last Saturday afternoon, nine of them ran over a dump at that point, instantly killing a brakeman named Harry Fleming, who lived with his mother at Blairsville. Later in the day, and when the same train was within three miles of Indiana, it ran over Mr. William A. Campbell, the venerable father of Conductor Harvey B. Campbell, now of the Williamsburg branch train, but at one time a brakeman on the E. & C. R. R., and a resident of this place, mangling his body in a horrible manner and killing him instantly. Mr. Campbell was discovered lying across one of the rails near his own home when the train approached him, but it was then too late to save him from the shocking death which so speedily overtook him. How he came to be on the track is of course altogether a matter of conjecture, but the presumption is that he was prostrated by a stroke of some kind. He was aged about 74 years, and where best known was most esteemed.

DREAMS THAT CAME TRUE.—Those acquainted with our worthy townsman, Mr. Charles Owens, must have noticed that he walks with a peculiar sort of limp in one of his legs. The manner in which this lameness was produced, as related to us by Mr. Owens himself, was with the attendant circumstances sufficiently strange to bear recital. Mr. Owens came to this place from Wales in May, 1840, and soon afterward secured a job along with Mr. Wm. D. Davis (killed a few years since on the railroad by being run over by the cars) and several other persons clearing the timber from a piece of land a short distance east of town. At the noonday hour of a certain day, after partaking of the edibles they had with them, Messrs. Owens and Davis reclined beneath the shade of a tree which was about to be felled and from which some half-dozen of chips had already been cut, and being somewhat fatigued both fell asleep. Shortly afterward Mr. Owens awoke and told his companion that he had had a dream wherein he saw the tree under which they were lying fall with its full weight upon them; but the only effect the narration had on either was to create a desire for another nap. A second and a third time the dream was dreamed and related, and almost simultaneously with its last occurrence down came the tree with a crash upon the prostrate forms of the two men reclining beneath it. Mr. Davis escaped with a few slight scratches, but Mr. Owens was less fortunate. In addition to some severe bruises, his right leg was broken, and that is the reason why the identical limp which, after the lapse of nearly forty-two years, is still perceptible in his comings and goings. This story may sound like the echo of an old superstition, but we are assured by Mr. Owens, who is a man of undisputed veracity, that it is true in all essential particulars. The mishap occurred about two weeks after his arrival in this place from his native land, Wales, and must have been looked on by Mr. Owens as a most inhospitable welcome to the locality which became and remains his permanent home.

THE SMALL-POX IN OUR MIDST AT LAST.—On Sunday last our borough authorities were officially notified of the presence in this community of three cases of confluent small-pox, the afflicted ones being young children of Wm. Roberts, colored, living on the outskirts of town in the East ward. The much dreaded disease seems to have been introduced by bringing to the house from Johnstown various articles of clothing infected with the virus, and the only thing to be wondered at, if not regretted, now that the disease has found lodgment in our midst, is that the member of the family who is responsible for its presence has thus far escaped the contagion. The three little sufferers are Vincent, aged 9 years, Alice (adopted) whose age is about the same age, and Vallie, aged 6. Dr. Kennedy, the attending physician, is doing all in his power to control the disease and confine it to its present locality, and the probabilities are that his efforts will prove successful. The older boy was vaccinated a few years ago, and as a consequence the attack is comparatively light and his recovery assured. As neither of the others were ever vaccinated, their chances are of course not as good, though the condition of all is much better than could be expected under circumstances so deplorable. The father of the family works in Johnstown, the mother has had the small-pox, and such of the children as are not afflicted with the disease have been vaccinated and are now considered safe from the infection. The borough authorities have quarantined the family, whose wants will be fully supplied, and have adopted all other needful precautions to guard against the spread of the contagion. Besides this the attending physician desires us to say that he changes his clothing entire not far from the house before and after visiting his patients, and as no one but himself is allowed to enter the house there is every reason to hope that the loathsome disease will be confined to the three little unfortunates who are already afflicted with it. God grant that such may prove to be the case.

RAILROAD FATALITIES.—The number of fatal railroad accidents seems to be increasing with each successive week. On last Monday morning a brakeman named John C. Seibert was killed at the east end of the Gallitzin tunnel. It appears that his train, on the hind part of which Seibert was standing, broke at the point named, and that before the front section had gone very far several of the cars became detached, and, having no brakeman to manage them, ran down the grade back to the rear portion of the train. Seibert either did not know of the danger, or if he did was too slow in making his escape, and after the collision, which caused somewhat of a wreck, he was found dead on the track, the wheels having severed his body about the abdomen. His remains were taken to Altoona, where he resided, for interment.

On the same day the mangled remains of a man were found on the railroad track at Beatty's station, a short distance west of Latrobe. It was impossible to identify him, and the only evidence about him as to his identity was a prayer book in which was written the name of "Mike Quinn." He had black hair and a light brown moustache. The remains were taken in charge and buried by the Westmoreland county authorities.

On Saturday, Wm. Moore, a miner employed by a coal company in their mines on the Bell's Gap railroad, in Blair county, took a trip with some of his fellow workmen to Utahville, in Clearfield county. While there he got drunk and about noon started on the cars on his return. Instead of stopping at the mines, as he ought to have done, he went on to Lloydsville, where he got off and started to walk down the track toward the miners' boarding-house, when the engine of the train overtook him, knocked him down and cut off his right foot. If William hadn't—but why moralize, since similar casualties are of almost daily occurrence?

DEDICATION OF THE NEW COURT HOUSE.—The citizens of Cambria county are respectfully invited to attend the dedication of the new Court House, in Ebensburg, on Thursday the 25th day of May next, at 10½ o'clock, A. M.

Committee of Invitation—F. A. Shoemaker, D. McLaughlin, Cyrus Elder, C. W. Easly, A. V. Barker, C. L. Dick, W. H. Story.

—Joseph Hogue, Esq., Administrator of Mrs. Mary Ann Bradley, late of Loretto borough, deceased, will offer at public sale, at 10 o'clock, A. M., on Saturday of next week, a large lot of personal property belonging to said decedent, such as cows, hogs, buggy, wagon, and a large lot of household goods. See posters printed at this office.

AN OLD-TIME SUPERSTITION.

HOW THE PEOPLE OF EBENSBURG WRESTLED WITH A WHOOPING COUGH SCOURGE MORE THAN FIFTY YEARS AGO.

In a conversation the other day with a citizen of this place who was born and raised in Ebensburg and is now upward of sixty years of age, the fact that small-pox has made its appearance in our midst brought up the subject of epidemics in general and reminded our old friend of a rather singular incident which occurred in this community when he was quite a small boy, and which may be worth narrating. It seems that whooping cough was raging among the little folks of our town at the time indicated and that a superstition prevailed here as elsewhere, and may even yet prevail in some localities that if children afflicted with or liable to the disease were passed five or six times under the belly of a donkey, otherwise known as a jack, that a speedy cure or a sure escape from the dreaded scourge would be the result. As luck would have it a donkey arrived in town about this time on its way to Pittsburg, and as no difficulty was experienced in inducing the owner to permit the experiment to be tried, the animal was properly secured in a stable which then stood on the spot now occupied by the wareroom of Messrs. V. S. Barker & Bro., and to this place all the children of the town, or at least all of those whose parents had faith in the panacea, were brought and put through the "jassackical" process in rapid succession, a man on one side of the donkey passing each child the requisite number of times to another man on the opposite side, that method of putting the youngsters through the process being as essential to the cure or prevention of the disease as any other part of programme. At least that was the way it was done on the occasion to which we refer, our informant not being sure but that he came in for his share of the treatment, and while there are no doubt plenty of people now-a-days who would laugh at the strange conceit of those who preceded them more than a half century ago, it is a fact easily demonstrated that in this enlightened age fully as many can be found who take as much stock as their forefathers did in methods just as ridiculous for the alleged cure or prevention of nearly all the ills that flesh is heir to as the stamping-out of a whooping cough epidemic by the strange process we have attempted to describe. Whether the relief sought for through the aid of Mr. Jack was obtained or not our informant was unable to say, being too young at the time to note the result, but certain it is that if the scourge ceased its ravages the poor donkey had about as much to do with it as Balaam's ass or Barnum's big elephant, the renowned Jumbo.

EVERYBODY'S GOING

To see the Handsomest Woman in the World, and 21 Performing Elephants, 1,500 Wild Beasts, a Colossal Circus in Two Rings, and a Grand Free Procession of Industry at Johnstown, May 1st.

The Great Forepaugh Show exhibits at Johnstown on Monday next, May 1st.

In addition to a grandly great circus in two great rings, and a monster menagerie of one thousand wild beasts, all transported by four great railway trains, there is to be a great, grand, free "Procession of the Trades," at Johnstown on the day Forepaugh exhibits there. Every town in the county will be represented in this huge, highway holiday parade. In addition to this, the great pageants of "Cleopatra" and "Lalla Rookh" will be presented in the show parade. This latter spectacle is described as being the most gorgeous ever seen upon the streets of an American city. The loveliest lady in the land has been secured to personify the beautiful Eastern Princess, Lalla Rookh, whom poets describe as "more beautiful than any of those heroines whose names and loves embellish the songs of Persia and Hindostan; more perfect than the divinest images of the House of Azor." In this gorgeous, glittering, oriental pageant, Lalla Rookh is seen reclining in her sumptuous howdah, borne aloft upon the back of a ponderous and kindly elephant, the largest on this continent, whose embroidered velvet trappings touch the ground; a fair young female slave sits fanning the Princess through the rose-colored veils, with feathers of argus-pheasant's wings, and the lovely troupe of Tartarian and Cashmerean maids of honor ride upon each side of the Princess upon small Arabian horses. Rajahs and Mogul Lords follow, accompanied by Cavaliers in costly armor, mounted upon

"Steeds with their housings of rich silver spun,
Their chains and poitrals glittering in the sun;
And Camels, tufted o'er with Yemen's shells,
Shaking in every breeze their light-toned bells."

In keeping with the author of Lalla Rookh's description of this grand, glittering, lavish and luxurious spectacle, are seen the Guards of the Great Kedar Kahn, with their silver battle-axes, and maces of gold, followed by the Great Nazir, or Chamberlain of the Harem, and the retinue of the Court of Delhi, mounted upon elephants, camels and Arabian horses, decorated in oriental trappings, and bearing aloft the royal standard—the entire scene recalling to the beholder the glories and the grandeur of the distant Indies; the whole forming the most magnificent, picturesque and realistic spectacle ever presented in the New World, requiring the expenditure of a hundred thousand dollars in its preparation, eclipsing all displays of pageantry ever produced by any exhibition, and in itself worth miles of travel to behold. Remember, this superb spectacle is presented daily, between the hours of 9 and 10 A. M., and is a great, grand, gorgeous, free public festival for all to look at and admire.

MR. ISAAC CRAWFORD died at the county almshouse on Saturday last, aged about 64 years. The deceased came to this place from Frankstown, Blair county, in 1854, and from that time up to about two years ago, with the exception of four years during which Mr. John Fitzharris occupied his property, he was engaged in the hotel business. A stroke of paralysis about two years ago rendered him an almost helpless invalid. No man in the county was better known at one time than he was, and his many good traits of character made him very popular as a landlord, and brought him a large share of public patronage. Misfortune, however, came upon him and stripped him of all his worldly possessions. His wife and a grown-up son and daughter survive him, and reside in Johnstown.

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

or those with weak lungs, spitting of blood, bronchitis, or kindred affections of throat or lungs, send two stamps for Dr. R. V. Pierce's treatise on these maladies. Address the doctor, Buffalo, N. Y.

NEW STORE AT MUNSTER.—H. J. Eberly wishes to inform the readers of the FREEMAN, and especially those living in and about Munster, that he has opened a general variety store in said village, into which he has just introduced a large and entirely new stock of dry goods, boots, shoes, hats, caps, groceries, tinware, etc., etc., which he is determined to sell just as cheap as anybody can sell of the same quality, and hopes to merit and receive a liberal share of public patronage. All kinds of country produce and grain will be received in exchange for goods and the highest market prices allowed.

ELEGANCE AND PURITY.

Ladies who appreciate elegance and purity are using Parker's Hair Balsam. It is the best article sold for restoring gray hair to its original color, beauty and lustre.

—The splendid new stock of Spring goods just received by S. Blumenthal, 1119 Eleventh avenue, Altoona, comprises every conceivable style of boots and shoes and is simply immense, while in the matter of price it must be an empty purse indeed that cannot meet the demand. Mr. B. wants it distinctly understood that he sells cheaper than anybody else, and to prove the assertion, he refers to all who have bought goods from him. A large lot of men's and boys' wear, all sorts and sizes, also on hand.

STAVES, HEADING AND LUMBER.—Those of our citizens desirous of selling staves, heading, lumber, etc., at the highest market prices should correspond with Mr. C. J. Gillespie, of Pittsburgh, who is an extensive dealer in this material. He has been in the business for many years and can give the best of reference.

ALWAYS REFRESHING.

A delicious odor is imparted by Floreston Cologne which is always refreshing, no matter how freely used.

AUDITOR'S NOTICE.—The undersigned auditor appointed by the Orphans' Court of Cambria county, to report distribution of the fund in the hands of Valentine Cramer, surviving executor of the last will and testament of James J. McGough, deceased, as shown by his first and partial account, hereby notifies all parties interested, that he will sit at his office in Ebensburg, on Tuesday, May 16, 1882, at 2 o'clock P. M., for the purpose of attending to the duties of said appointment, at which time and place all persons interested may attend, if they see proper.

R. P. KITTELL, Auditor.

Ebensburg, Pa., April 8, 1882.-3t.

SHERIFF.—The undersigned will be a candidate for nomination at the approaching Democratic primary election, subject of course to the rules of the party, for the office of Sheriff of Cambria county, and hopes to be deemed worthy of the favorable consideration of his personal and political friends. JOS. F. DURBIN.

Allegheny Twp., April 21, 1882.-te.

CARD.—I hereby place myself before the Democracy of Cambria county for nomination for the office of Sheriff, subject to the rules of the party. JOHN BEHE.

St. Augustine, April 7, 1882.

IN MEMORIAM.

A CITY EDITOR GONE.

EDITOR FREEMAN.—Upon taking up a Chicago paper on Monday last, the first item of news that met my eye was the telegraphic announcement of the death, the day before, at Johnstown, of Mr. Early, city editor of the "Tribune" of that place. This news did not come to me with unexpected suddenness, as I learned by the FREEMAN of his precarious and suffering condition. But the news, nevertheless, was received with feelings of the deepest sorrow and regret, because years ago, when a "printer boy" in Ebensburg, I learned to realize the fact that few such local writers as Casper Early were to be found. I know enough to know that city editors do not grow, like berries, upon a bush, nor are they made valuable newspaper men, such as Casper was, in a day. It was the universal opinion among his brethren, where the "Tribune" circulated, that a "better or more spicy and newsy local page than Casper gets up cannot be found." And in view of the great amount of daily work required and expected of men in his position, to present a page like his, each day, and knowing, as we all do, Casper's great energy and determination, who shall say that his death was not the indirect result of "overwork?"

Few people realize how laborious and exhausting is the work of an editor on an energetic daily journal, and especially of the city editor. The convenient scissors and the kind offices of the good writers who are to be found in every city can be secured for the rest of the news or managing editors, but the daily happenings, the wisdom in selecting and rejecting, the skill in expression, the tact in setting news promptly before the world, the prudent and judgment necessary, are, all must admit, peculiarly the work of the city editor—all this creating a load of responsibility and care that crushes out the life of the men engaged while they are yet in their prime, and they are the ones who people the silent city of the dead with marble finger boards that tell the tale of swift travel from the sanctum to the tomb. The days of the city editor are full of exposure. No matter how fierce the storms of nature or of men are or threaten to be, he must do his duty and give the news. He labors six days in the week incessantly. He must be accurate, too. There is no time for thought, and the judgment in reference to his course must be formed with lightning speed. An unfortunate word, an injudicious sentence may anger the reader and result detrimentally to those whom he serves. Is it, in view of these inexorable expressed facts, any wonder that between exposure, responsibility and labor this necessary class of men find early graves or desert the field only when their health and very life demand it?

Casper Early has penned his last item, his last "proof" has been read and pronounced "correct," and his familiar language hurriedly and artistically shaped into comely and newsy locals, has gone to "final press." May his ashes rest in peace, is the wish of a far-western brother scribe.

THE EBENSBURG
NORMAL INSTITUTE
—WILL OPEN—
MAY 8, 1882,
—IN THE—
Union School Building, Ebensburg, Pa.,
UNDER THE SUPERVISION OF
CO. SUP'T L. STRAYER and CHAS. A. RIDDLE.

First Session of the Ebensburg Normal Institute.

EVERY TEACHER who has risen to the ordinary routine of school work has attended school and by superior mental and physical culture, habits, modes of thought, and attainments, has been enabled to teach with pleasure and satisfaction to himself and with honor to the profession. Those who rise higher do it by mental training; results are accomplished only by study and training of the mind.

It is not lack of talent, time, or money, but the lack of will and determination of purpose which prevents many teachers and young people from attending school.

The public demand educational progress; the profession demands the best talent, the best special preparation possible on the part of teachers. The greatest want of the age is the want of good teachers.

DESIGN.

The design of the Normal Institute is to provide better teachers for Cambria county—to furnish a school for our teachers who are not prepared to attend a State Normal School—to accommodate young men and women who are preparing to teach, and to advance the cause of education.

INSTRUCTION.

Thorough instruction will be given in all branches that students desire to study. Special attention will be paid to the branches named on teachers' certificates, but students who are prepared will be encouraged to take up other studies.

Classes will be organized in Latin, Algebra, Physiology, Book-Keeping, Geometry, Botany, &c. Drawing will receive special attention. Instruction in Vocal Music will also be given.

MODEL SCHOOL.

The Model School will be composed of the pupils of the Ebensburg Public Schools.

The design of the Model School is two-fold; first, to present our students with an example of what a public school should be; and, second, to furnish a place where they may observe the best methods in use, and learn by trial how to put theory into practice.

Opportunities will be given students to visit the Model School, where they may witness the operation of approved methods, under the supervision of the managers of the school. The County Superintendent will make a specialty of this department.

Teachers will meet twice a week for class criticism and discussion of work, at which times the excellencies and defects of methods will be pointed out, that all may profit thereby.

TERMS, &c.

The Normal Institute will open on Monday, May 8, 1882; length of term, nine weeks. Tuition, for Teachers' Course, $7.00; for Preparatory Course, $6.00.

Good boarding can be secured for $2.00 per week. Students who wish boarding secured before the opening of school should write to either of the undersigned.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Dictionaries, Encyclopedias, and all necessary books of reference, will be at disposal of students.

A Literary Society will be organized, and, in connection with the regular instructions of the school, will afford students fine opportunities for literary culture.

Students are recommended to bring all text-books and other books of reference, as the topical method will be largely used. Students should be in attendance the first day of school. No extra charges for higher studies.

L. STRAYER.
C. A. RIDDLE.

N. B.—It is desirable that students confer with us at their earliest convenience before the school opens. [3-24.-tf.]

TWO FARMS AT PRIVATE SALE.

THE undersigned offers for sale at very moderate prices and on easy payments the following described real estate, situate in Munster township, Cambria county, to wit:

FARM NO. 1, CONTAINING 55 ACRES, more or less, in a good state of cultivation, with a hewed LOG HOUSE, a good FRAME BARN and the necessary outbuildings thereon erected.

FARM NO. 2, CONTAINING 66 ACRES, more or less, is also in an excellent state of cultivation and has thereon erected a substantial STONE HOUSE and the usual outbuildings.

THE TWO FARMS

above described are located close to the Turnpike, within one-half mile of the village of Munster, on the E. & C. R. R., three and a half miles from Cresson Station, P. R. R., and not much more than that distance from Ebensburg. There is a thriving ORCHARD of choice fruit and an abundance of pure water on each of the farms, a good well being within five feet of the house on the farm first described. Nearly all the land is cleared and under cultivation.

☞ Persons wishing to purchase can either apply to ex-Sheriff JOHN RYAN, Johnstown, or to the owner on the premises. LUKE ROGERS.

Thanks, emen.

If you are needing we advise you at John Owens' store, where there's st all you'll find what you need, for stock you ne'er saw, from the finest to the commonest straw, than John shelved and is offering so low that n abundance will be sure there to go; ey they'll see dry goods and groceries any things more, just as cheap as the John Owens' store.

We tender our heartfelt sympathies to d Archibald Farrell, of Barr town- the loss of his excellent wife, who the 16th inst., aged about 42 years. adds very much to our friend's sad be- ment is that seven of the nine children sing his family are quite small and eatly miss their loving mother's gentle kindness. May God comfort the ed family and grant rest to the soul of eased wife and mother.

—The largest new stock of men's fine dress and business suits, as well as clothing of all kind for boys and children, that has been opened in Altoona this Spring, has just been received by S. Sprankle & Son, whose store is now filled to overflowing with the latest styles and most desirable suits for the season. Call early and secure the best bargains in clothing that Altoona can furnish.

—We had the pleasure on Wednesday last of a visit, only too brief, from two of Wilmore's most prominent and energetic young citizens, Messrs. B. C. J. McGuire and H. M. Kephart, who reported everything serene in the ancient borough, and also rejoiced in the fact that good health and a fair share of prosperity were among the blessings they themselves are enjoying. May it be ever thus with both of them.

—While Mrs. A. J. Christy and one or two of her children, of Loretto, were out driving on last Sunday afternoon, the horse fell and broke the buggy and badly demoralized the harness, but fortunately none of the occupants of the vehicle were thrown out or in any way injured. The accident occurred while ascending the hill above Bengele's hotel, and is thought to have been caused by the horse choking in consequence of the collar being too small.

—Our young friend Ed. H. Flick, of Carrolltown, who has been attending school at St. Vincent's College, Westmoreland county, for several months past, returned to Ebensburg on Tuesday last and once more settled down to the study of the law, to say nothing of the profits, in the office of A. V. Barker, Esq. Ed. is one of the most intelligent and deserving young men in the county, and his success in the profession he has chosen, if life and health are spared him, is only a matter of time.

—A very destructive fire occurred in Keytesville, Missouri, on the afternoon of last Sunday week, destroying a large frame hotel, in which the fire originated, and several other building, the aggregate loss amounting to forty thousand dollars. Mr. Thomas Dougherty, a son of Mr. John Dougherty, of this place, and who is a resident of Keytesville, suffered a loss of about $300, a small frame building owned by him being one of the buildings destroyed. His residence was outside of the burnt district.

—Our worthy young friend and patron, Mr. W. P. Mullen, of St. Augustine, and also a member of the firm of R. W. Christy and Co., of Altoona, took to himself a wife at the early hour of 6 o'clock on last Tuesday morning in the person of Miss Belle Ruffner, one of Blairsville's most amiable and handsome daughters. May their pathway through life be neither Ruffner thorny, but should a few Mullen stalks spring up by the way we doubt not they will add very much to their comfort and happiness.

—A regular knock down and drag out occurred in Carrolltown on last Tuesday evening, and both of the participants are said to have been pretty badly used up. One of the parties is engaged in business in Carrolltown, and the other, if we mistake not, hails from Susquehanna township. The latter got the worst beating of the two, his assailant, we are told, having struck him several times with a poker. A lawsuit will probably be the end as whisky was no doubt the beginning of the trouble.

—Mr. James J. Murphy, the courteous and energetic proprietor of Star Clothing Hall, and owner of the well known Mansion House hotel, Johnstown, which has been so long and admirably conducted by that prince of landlords, Mr. Joseph Shoemaker, is having a large three story addition put to said hotel, and when the work is completed, the Mansion House will stand without a rival in Johnstown as to size, convenience and general adaptability to the accommodation of the traveling public.

—Mr. Joseph Gutwald, the well known West ward butcher, brought to town the early part of this week two two-year-old steers which will be served to his customers in the shape of steaks, roasts, etc., in due course of time. They were bought from Mr. Archie Stewart, of Indiana county, and the two weighed 3,600 pounds, or an average of 1,800 pounds each. In all respects they are the equals of the cattle brought here and slaughtered by Mr. Gutwald just before Easter, and that is saying a good deal.

—For the last three months or more our readers, no doubt, have observed in these columns a brief notice about Cham. Roberts' store and his stock so complete, comprising many things needful and many things neat, and now we wish to remark that our worthy friend Cham. has a fine lot of hats which bear off the palm for beauty and cheapness, in which they'll compare with any stock of the kind either here or elsewhere. And it is well to remember, what you have likely conceived, that this stock is all new and has just been received.

—An old and delapidated building at Wilmore in which Joseph Wherry and his wife and nine children have been domiciled for several years past, caught fire from a defective flue or stovepipe on last Monday evening and now the good people of that place, who rushed to the rescue and succeeded in extinguishing the flames before much damage was done, if damage could possibly be done to such a structure, are wondering among themselves whether it wouldn't have been just as well to have left the old rookery burn down and be done with it.

—Mr. Abe Brawley, who follows the butchering business at Manor Station, on the Pennsylvania Railroad, a few miles west of Greensburg, and who is a son of David Brawley, a former well known resident of this vicinity, but who now lives on a farm near New Salem, Westmoreland county, was robbed of about four hundred dollars, one night during the early part of last week, by some person who entered his sleeping room and carried off his pantaloons containing the money. The thief is strongly suspected, but whether any arrest has yet been made we are unable to state.

—When we inform our readers that Star Clothing Hall, 109 Clinton street, Johnstown, has just been filled to repletion with an immense stock of spring and summer clothing, gent's furnishing goods, etc., we are sure that none of them will need to be told that the goods therein contained are of the very best as to quality and the very cheapest as to price. For nearly if not fully thirty years Mr. Murphy, the proprietor of this popular clothing house, has maintained a reputation for selling honest goods at honest prices, and he has no intention to go back on his record now or at any time in the future.

—A "Farmers' Mutual Live Stock Protection Association" has been organized by citizens of Carrolltown and vicinity, and with such worthy and enterprising gentlemen as Benjamin Wertner for President, John Buck for Vice President, Andrew Strittmatter for Treasurer, J. J. Thomas for Secretary, Chas. Dunlap, S. P. Syberts and Nicholas Nagle for Auditors, and P. L. Eck, W. T. Gooderham and Jos. Bearer for Assessors, flanked as they are by such energetic men as Dr. J. J. Oatman, J. G. C. Bearer, A. Weakland, H. J. Eckenrode, John H. Hoover, and others of like ilk, there is no question but what the association will be well conducted and that all parties interested will find it a good thing to tie to. About forty head of horses were entered the same evening the company was organized.

—The death of Mr. Thomas Lynch, one of the oldest citizens of Altoona, which occurred on last Thursday morning, in the 83d year of his age, has removed from time to eternity a man who enjoyed in an eminent degree the respect and esteem of everybody who knew him. He was as honest and upright as he was industrious and peaceable, and during his long and useful life he was a model citizen, a faithful husband, a kind father, an obliging neighbor and a sincere Christian. His aged wife and three children, of whom our energetic friend, B. J. Lynch, of Altoona, is the youngest, the other two being Mrs. Mary Hopkins, with whom the deceased made his home, and Mrs. Rose Kearney, of Iowa, are left to mourn for a good husband and father. May God grant eternal rest to his soul.

—On Saturday last Judge Acheson, in the United States District Court at Pittsburgh, delivered his opinion in the case of the Assignees of William M. Lloyd against Thomas McCauley and others. The case was argued five or six weeks ago, and held under advisement by the Court, as we stated at the time, and the decision has now been rendered. It was a suit in equity, as will be remembered, brought by the assignees in bankruptcy of William M. Lloyd to set aside a mortgage given to the defendants, the plaintiffs claiming that it was fraudulent and an unlawful preference under the bankrupt law. The Court directed a decree to be drawn dismissing the bill in equity at the cost of the assignees. The homestead of Wm. M. Lloyd, in the vicinity of Altoona, is the property covered by the mortgage.

—The Ebensburg Normal Institute will open May 8th, as previously announced. An unusually large number of pupils have already been enrolled, and the prospects are very encouraging for the most successful Normal School that has ever been conducted in Ebensburg. The healthfulness and quietness for which our town is noted will add much to the comfort and success of the students. The managers, Messrs. Strayer and Riddle, are determined to do everything in their power for the advancement of all who may attend. Teachers and those preparing to teach should certainly avail themselves of this opportunity to attend a good school at home without incurring the additional expense of going elsewhere for that purpose. There is much need of a permanent school of the character of the Normal Institute in our county, and our teachers will certainly be benefitted by their attendance thereat.

—The annual election of officers of the Newman Literary and Dramatic Association of St. Francis' College, Loretto, took place on last Sunday evening, April 23d, with the following result: President, Neil McNelis; Vice President, John P. Drbew; Treasurer, George Coll; Recording Secretary, James Malarkey; Corresponding Secretary, Lewis J. Randall; Financial Secretary, Allen Ramsay; Librarian, Prof. F. J. Noel; Directors, Wm. J. O'Connell, Arthur Commiskey, Francis Bradley and P. J. Toole. The following were added by the President to the Executive Committee: James P. Greene, James Kelly and D. J. Darby; and to the Committee on Plays: Thomas J. Kilbride, J. T. Kearney, Daniel Macneal, Thomas Hollorhan and Thomas Hearn. The installation of officers will take place on next Sunday evening, and will be followed by a literary entertainment.

—It appears from some remarks made by Judge Dean at the Huntingdon county court, two weeks ago, when the question of granting license was before him, that there are only nineteen licensed hotels in that county—one hotel for about every seventeen hundred inhabitants. This is an exceptionally small number when compared with most of the other counties, and the wonder with us is how it happens that in a county containing so few taverns such a constant, bitter and unrelenting warfare can be kept up between the two divisions of the grand old Republican party, as any one can see for himself who reads the weekly issues of the Globe and Journal, the organs of the two rival factions. There must be some other cause than the nineteen hotel bars for the war to the knife and the knife to the hilt that has been raging for weeks between the friends of the Globe and the friends of the Journal, and all about the election of two delegates to the Republican State convention. What can it be?

—While a freight train was swinging in some empty cars at Cokesville, between Blairsville and the Intersection, on last Saturday afternoon, nine of them ran over a dump at that point, instantly killing a brakeman named Harry Fleming, who lived with his mother at Blairsville. Later in the day, and when the same train was within three miles of Indiana, it ran over Mr. William A. Campbell, the venerable father of Conductor Harvey B. Campbell, now of the Williamsburg branch train, but at one time a brakeman on the E & C. R. R., and a resident of this place, mangling his body in a horrible manner and killing him instantly. Mr. Campbell was discovered lying across one of the rails near his own home when the train approached him, but it was then too late to save him from the shocking death which so speedily overtook him. How he came to be on the track is of course altogether a matter of conjecture, but the presumption is that he was prostrated by a stroke of some kind. He was aged about 74 years, and where best known was most esteemed.

DREAMS THAT CAME TRUE.—Those acquainted with our worthy townsman, Mr. Charles Owens, must have noticed that he walks with a peculiar sort of limp to one of his legs. The manner in which this lameness was produced, as related to us by Mr. Owens himself, was with the attendant circumstances sufficiently strange to bear recital. Mr. Owens came to this place from Wales in May, 1840, and soon afterward secured a job along with Mr. Wm. D. Davis (killed a few years since on the railroad by being run over by the cars) and several other persons clearing the timber from a piece of land a short distance east of town. At the noonday hour of a certain day, after partaking of the edibles they had with them, Messrs. Owens and Davis reclined beneath the shade of a tree which was about to be felled and from which some half-dozen of chips had already been cut, and being somewhat fatigued both fell asleep. Shortly afterward Mr. Owens awoke and told his companion that he had had a dream wherein he saw the tree under which they were lying fall with its full weight upon them; but the only effect the narration had on either was to create a desire for another nap. A second and a third time the dream was dreamed and related, and almost simultaneously with its last occurrence down came the tree with a crash upon the prostrate forms of the two men reclining beneath it. Mr. Davis escaped with a few slight scratches, but Mr. Owens was less fortunate. In addition to some severe bruises, his right leg was broken, and that is the reason why the identical limp which, after the lapse of nearly forty-two years, is still perceptible in his comings and goings. This story may sound like the echo of an old superstition, but we are assured by Mr. Owens, who is a man of undisputed veracity, that it is true in all essential particulars. The mishap occurred about two weeks after his arrival in this place from his native land, Wales, and must have been looked on by Mr. Owens as a most inhospitable welcome to the locality which became and remains his permanent home.

THE SMALL-POX IN OUR MIDST AT LAST.—On Sunday last our borough authorities were officially notified of the presence in this community of three cases of confluent small-pox, the afflicted ones being young children of Wm. Roberts, colored, living on the outskirts of town in the East ward. The much dreaded disease seems to have been introduced by bringing to the house from Johnstown various articles of clothing infected with the virus, and the only thing to be wondered at, if not regretted, now that the disease has found lodgment in our midst, is that the member of the family who is responsible for its presence has thus far escaped the contagion. The three little sufferers are Vincent, aged 9 years, Alice (adopted), whose age is about the same age, and Vallie, aged 6. Dr. Kennedy, the attending physician, is doing all in his power to control the disease and confine it to its present locality, and the probabilities are that his efforts will prove successful. The older boy was vaccinated a few years ago, and as a consequence the attack is comparatively light and his recovery assured. As neither of the others were ever vaccinated, their chances are of course not so good, though the condition of all is much better than could be expected under circumstances so deplorable. The father of the family works in Johnstown, the mother has had the small-pox, and such of the children as are not afflicted with the disease have been vaccinated and are now considered safe from the infection. The borough authorities have quarantined the family, whose wants will be fully supplied, and have adopted all other needful precautions to guard against the spread of the contagion. Besides this the attending physician desires us to say that he changes his clothing entire not far from the house before and after visiting his patients, and as no one but himself is allowed to enter the house there is every reason to hope that the loathsome disease will be confined to the three little unfortunates who are already afflicted with it. God grant that such may prove to be the case.

RAILROAD FATALITIES.—The number of fatal railroad accidents seems to be increasing with each successive week. On last Monday morning a brakeman named John C. Seibert was killed at the east end of the Gallitzin tunnel. It appears that his train, on the hind part of which Seibert was standing, broke at the point named, and that before the front section had gone very far several of the cars became detached, and, having no brakeman to manage them, ran down the grade back to the rear portion of the train. Seibert either did not know of the danger, or if he did was too slow in making his escape, and after the collision, which caused something of a wreck, he was found dead on the track, the wheels having severed his body about the abdomen. His remains were taken to Altoona, where he resided, for interment.

On the same day the mangled remains of a man were found on the railroad track at Beatty's station, a short distance west of Latrobe. It was impossible to identify him, and the only evidence about him as to his identity was a prayer book in which was written the name of "Mike Quinn." He had black hair and a light brown moustache. The remains were taken in charge and burried by the Westmoreland county authorities.

On Saturday, Wm. Moore, a miner employed by a coal company in their mines on the Bell's Gap railroad, in Blair county, took a trip with some of his fellow workmen to Utahville, in Clearfield county. While there he got drunk and about noon started on the cars on his return. Instead of stopping at the mines, as he ought to have done, he went on to Lloydsville, where he got off and started to walk down the track toward the miners' boarding-house, when the engine of the train overtook him, knocked him down and cut off his right foot. If William hadn't—but why moralize, since similar casualties are of almost daily occurrence?

DEDICATION OF THE NEW COURT HOUSE.—The citizens of Cambria county are respectfully invited to attend the dedication of the new Court House, in Ebensburg, on Thursday the 25th day of May next, at 10½ o'clock, A. M.

Committee of Invitation—F. A. Shoemaker, D. McLaughlin, Cyrus Elder, C. W. Easly, A. V. Barker, C. L. Dick, W. H. Story.

—Joseph Hogue, Esq., Administrator of Mrs. Mary Ann Bradley, late of Loretto borough, deceased, will offer at public sale, at 10 o'clock, A. M., on Saturday of next week, a large lot of personal property belonging to said decedent, such as cows, hogs, buggy, wagon, and a large lot of household goods. See posters printed at this office.

AN OLD-TIME SUPERSTITION.

HOW THE PEOPLE OF EBENSBURG WRESTLED WITH A WHOOPING COUGH SCOURGE MORE THAN FIFTY YEARS AGO.

In a conversation the other day with a citizen of this place who was born and raised in Ebensburg and is now upward of sixty years of age, the fact that small-pox has made its appearance in our midst brought up the subject of epidemics in general and reminded our old friend of a rather singular incident which occurred in this community when he was quite a small boy, and which may be worth narrating. It seems that whooping cough was raging among the little folks of our town at the time indicated and that a superstition prevailed here as elsewhere, and may even yet prevail in some localities that if children afflicted with or liable to the disease were passed five or six times under the belly of a donkey, otherwise known as a jack, that a speedy cure or a sure escape from the dreaded scourge would be the result. As luck would have it a donkey arrived in town about this time on its way to Pittsburg, and as no difficulty was experienced in inducing the owner to permit the experiment to be tried, the animal was properly secured in a stable which then stood on the spot now occupied by the wareroom of Messrs. V. S. Barker & Bro., and to this place all the children of the town, or at least all of those whose parents had faith in the panacea, were brought and put through the "jassackical" process in rapid succession, a man on one side of the donkey passing each child the requisite number of times to another man on the opposite side, that method of putting the youngsters through the process being as essential to the cure or prevention of the disease as any other part of programme. At least that was the way it was done on the occasion to which we refer, our informant not being sure but that he came in for his share of the treatment, and while there are no doubt plenty of people now-a-days who would laugh at the strange conceit of those who preceded them more than a half century ago, it is a fact easily demonstrated that in this enlightened age fully as many can be found who take as much stock as their forefathers did in methods just as ridiculous for the alleged cure or prevention of nearly all the ills that flesh is heir to as the stamping-out of a whooping cough epidemic by the strange process we have attempted to describe. Whether the relief sought for through the aid of Mr. Jack was obtained or not our informant was unable to say, being too young at the time to note the result, but certain it is that if the scourge ceased its ravages the poor donkey had about as much to do with it as Balaam's ass or Barnum's big elephant, the renowned Jumbo.

EVERYBODY'S GOING

To see the Handsomest Woman in the World, and 21 Performing Elephants, 1,000 Wild Beasts, a Colossal Circus in Two Rings, and a Grand Free Procession of Industry at Johnstown, May 1st.

The Great Forepaugh Show exhibits at Johnstown on Monday next, May 1st.

In addition to a grandly great circus in two great rings, and a monster menagerie of one thousand wild beasts, all transported by four great railway trains, there is to be a great, grand, free "Procession of the Trades," at Johnstown on the day Forepaugh exhibits there. Every town in the county will be represented in this huge, highway holiday parade. In addition to this, the great pageants of "Cleopatra" and "Lalla Rookh" will be presented in the show parade. This latter spectacle is described as being the most gorgeous ever seen upon the streets of an American city. The loveliest lady in the land has been secured to personify the beautiful Eastern Princess, Lalla Rookh, whom poets describe as "more beautiful than any of those heroines whose names and loves embellish the songs of Persia and Hindostan; more perfect than the divinest images of the House of Azor." In this gorgeous, glittering, oriental pageant, Lalla Rookh is seen reclining in her sumptuous howdah, borne aloft upon the back of a pondrous and kindly elephant, the largest on this continent, whose embroidered velvet trappings touch the ground; a fair young female slave sits fanning the Princess through the rose-colored veils, with feathers of argus-pheasant's wings, and the lovely troupe of Tartarian and Cashmerean maids of honor ride upon each side of the Princess upon small Arabian horses. Rajahs and Mogul Lords follow, accompanied by Cavaliers in costly armor, mounted upon

"Steeds with their housings of rich silver spun,
Their chains and peitrels glittering in the sun;
And Camels, tufted o'er with Yemen's shells,
Shaking in every breeze their light-toned bells."

In keeping with the author of Lalla Rookh's description of this grand, glittering, lavish and luxurious spectacle, are seen the Guards of the Great Kedar Kahn, with their silver battle-axes, and maces of gold, followed by the Great Nazir, or Chamberlain of the Harem, and the retinue of the Court of Delhi, mounted upon elephants, camels and Arabian horses, decorated in oriental trappings, and bearing aloft the royal standard—the entire scene recalling to the beholder the glories and the grandeur of the distant Indies; the whole forming the most magnificent, picturesque and realistic spectacle ever presented in the New World, requiring the expenditure of a hundred thousand dollars in its preparation, eclipsing all displays of pageantry ever produced by any exhibition, and in itself worth miles of travel to behold. Remember, this superb spectacle is presented daily, between the hours of 9 and 10 A. M., and is a great, grand, gorgeous, free public festival for all to look at and admire.

MR. ISAAC CRAWFORD died at the county almshouse on Saturday last, aged about 64 years. The deceased came to this place from Frankstown, Blair county, in 1854, and from that time up to about two years ago, with the exception of four years during which Mr. John Fitzharris occupied his property, he was engaged in the hotel business. A stroke of paralysis about two years ago rendered him an almost helpless invalid. No man in the county was better known at one time than he was, and his many good traits of character made him very popular as a landlord, and brought him a large share of public patronage. Misfortune, however, came upon him and stripped him of all his worldly possessions. His wife and a grown-up son and daughter survive him, and reside in Johnstown.

TO CONSUMPTIVES,

or those with weak lungs, spitting of blood, bronchitis, or kindred affections of throat or lungs, send two stamps for Dr. R. V. Pierce's treatise on these maladies. Address the doctor, Buffalo, N. Y.

NEW STORE AT MUNSTER.—H. J. Eberly wishes to inform the readers of the FREEMAN, and especially those living in and about Munster, that he has opened a general variety store in said village, into which he has just introduced a large and entirely new stock of dry goods, boots, shoes, hats, caps, groceries, tinware, etc., etc., which he is determined to sell just as cheap as anybody can sell of the same quality, and hopes to merit and receive a liberal share of public patronage. All kinds of country produce and grain will be received in exchange for goods and the highest market prices allowed.

ELEGANCE AND PURITY.

Ladies who appreciate elegance and purity are using Parker's Hair Balsam. It is the best article sold for restoring gray hair to its original color, beauty and lustre.

—The splendid new stock of Spring goods just received by S. Blumenthal, 1119 Eleventh avenue, Altoona, comprises every conceivable style of boots and shoes and is simply immense, while in the matter of price it must be an empty purse indeed that cannot meet the demand. Mr. B. wants it distinctly understood that he sells cheaper than anybody else, and to prove the assertion, he refers to all who have bought goods from him. A large lot of men's and boys' wear, all sorts and sizes, also on hand.

STAVES, HEADING AND LUMBER.—Those of our citizens desirous of selling staves, heading, lumber, etc., at the highest market prices should correspond with Mr. C. J. Gillespie, of Pittsburgh, who is an extensive dealer in this material. He has been in the business for many years and can give the best of reference.

ALWAYS REFRESHING.

A delicious odor is imparted by Floreston Cologne which is always refreshing, no matter how freely used.

AUDITOR'S NOTICE.—The undersigned auditor, appointed by the Orphans' Court of Cambria county, to report distribution of the fund in the hands of Valentine Cramer, surviving executor of the last will and testament of James J. McGough, deceased, as shown by his first and partial account, hereby notifies all parties interested, that he will sit at his office in Ebensburg, on Tuesday, May 16, 1882, at 2 o'clock P. M., for the purpose of attending to the duties of said appointment, at which time and place all persons interested may attend, if they see proper.

M. D. KITTELL, Auditor.

Ebensburg, Pa., April 8, 1882.-3t.

SHERIFF.—The undersigned will be a candidate for nomination at the approaching Democratic primary election, subject of course to the rules of the party, for the office of Sheriff of Cambria county, and hopes to be deemed worthy of the favorable consideration of his personal and political friends.

JOS. F. DURBIN.

Allegheny Twp., April 21, 1882.-te.

CARD.—I hereby place myself before the Democracy of Cambria county for nomination for the office of Sheriff, subject to the rules of the party.

IN MEMORIAM.

A CITY EDITOR GONE.

EDITOR FREEMAN—Upon taking up a Chicago paper on Monday last, the first item of news that met my eye was the telegraphic announcement of the death, the day before at Johnstown, of Mr. Easly, city editor of the "Tribune" of that place. This news did not come to me with unexpected suddenness, as I learned by the FREEMAN of his precarious and suffering condition. But the news, nevertheless was received with feelings of the deepest sorrow and regret, because years ago, when a "printer boy" in Ebensburg, I learned to realize the fact that few such local writers as Casper Easly were to be found. I know enough to know that city editors do not grow, like berries, upon a bush, nor are they made valuable newspaper men, such as Casper was, in a day. It was the universal opinion among his brethren, where the "Tribune" circulated, that a "better or more spicy and newsy local page than Casper gets up cannot be found." And in view of the great amount of daily work required and expected of men in his position, to present a page like his, each day, and knowing, as we all do, Casper's great energy and determination, who shall say that his death was not the indirect result of "over-work?"

Few people realize how ceaseless and exhausting is the work of an editor on an energetic daily journal, and especially of the city editor. The convenient scissors and the kind offices of the good writers who are to be found in every city, can be secured for the rest of the news or managing editors, but the daily happenings, the wisdom in selecting and rejecting, the skill in expression, the tact in setting news promptly before the world, the prudent and judgment necessary, are, all must admit, peculiarly the work of the city editor—all this creating a load of responsibility and care that crushes out the life of the men engaged while they are yet in their prime, and they are the ones who people the silent city of the dead with marble finger boards that tell the tale of swift travel from the sanctum to the tomb. The days of the city editor are full of exposure. No matter how fierce the storms of nature or of man are or threaten to be, he must do his duty and give the news. He labors six days in the week incessantly. He must be accurate, too. There is no time for thought, and the judgment in reference to his course must be formed with lightning speed. An unfortunate word, an injudicious sentence may anger the reader and result detrimentally to those whom he serves. Is it, in view of these hurriedly expressed facts, any wonder that between exposure, responsibility and labor this necessary class of men find early graves or desert the field only when their health and very life demand it?

Casper Easly has penned his last item, his last "proof" has been read and pronounced "correct," and his familiar language hurriedly and artistically shaped into comely and newsy locals, has gone to "final press." May his ashes rest in peace, is the wish of a far-western brother scribe.

THE EBENSBURG

NORMAL INSTITUTE

—WILL OPEN—

MAY 8, 1882,

—IN THE—

Union School Building, Ebensburg, Pa.,

UNDER THE SUPERVISION OF

CO. SUP'T L. STRAYER AND CHAS. A. RIDDLE.

First Session of the Ebensburg Normal Institute.

EVERY TEACHER who has risen to the ordinary routine of school work has attended school and by superior mental and physical culture, habits, modes of thought, and attainments, has been enabled to teach with pleasure and satisfaction to himself and with honor to the profession. Those who rise higher do it by mental training; results are accomplished only by study and training of the mind.

It is not lack of talent, time, or money, but the lack of will and determination of purpose which prevents many teachers and young people from attending school.

The public demand educational progress; the profession demands the best talent, the best special preparation possible on the part of teachers. The greatest want of the age is the want of good teachers.

DESIGN.

The design of the Normal Institute is to provide better teachers for Cambria county—to furnish a school for our teachers who are not prepared to attend a State Normal School—to accommodate young men and women who are preparing to teach, and to advance the cause of education.

INSTRUCTION.

Thorough instruction will be given in all branches that students desire to study. Special attention will be paid to the branches named on teachers' certificates, but students who are prepared will be encouraged to take up other studies.

Classes will be organized in Latin, Algebra, Physiology, Book-Keeping, Geometry, Botany, &c. Drawing will receive special attention. Instruction in Vocal Music will also be given.

MODEL SCHOOL.

The Model School will be composed of the pupils of the Ebensburg Public Schools.

The design of the Model School is two-fold; first, to present our students with an example of what a public school should be; and, second, to furnish a place where they may observe the best methods in use, and learn by trial how to put theory into practice.

Opportunities will be given students to visit the Model School, where they may witness the operation of approved methods, under the supervision of the managers of the school. The County Superintendent will make a specialty of this department.

Teachers will meet twice a week for class criticism and discussion of work, at which times the excellencies and defects of methods will be pointed out, that all may profit thereby.

TERMS, &c.

The Normal Institute will open on Monday, May 8, 1882; length of term, nine weeks. Tuition, for Teachers' Course, $7.00; for Preparatory Course, $5.00.

Good boarding can be secured for $3.00 per week. Students who wish boarding secured before the opening of school should write to either of the undersigned.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Dictionaries, Encyclopedias, and all necessary books of reference, will be at disposal of students.

A Literary Society will be organized, and, in connection with the regular instructions of the school, will afford students fine opportunities for literary culture.

Students are recommended to bring all text-books and other books of reference, as the topical method will be largely used. Students should be in attendance the first day of school. No extra charges for higher studies.

L. STRAYER,
C. A. RIDDLE.

N. B.—It is desirable that students confer with us at their earliest convenience before the school opens. [3-24.-tf.]

TWO FARMS AT PRIVATE SALE.

THE undersigned offers for sale at very moderate prices and on easy payments the following described real estate, situate in Munster township, Cambria county, to wit:

FARM NO. 1, CONTAINING 55 ACRES, more or less, in a good state of cultivation, with a hewed LOG HOUSE, a good FRAME BARN and the necessary outbuildings thereon erected.

FARM NO. 2, CONTAINING 66 ACRES, more or less, is also in an excellent state of cultivation and has thereon erected a substantial STONE HOUSE and the usual outbuildings.

THE TWO FARMS

above described are located close to the Turnpike, within one-half mile of the village of Munster, on the E. & C. R. R., three and a-half miles from Cresson Station, P. R. R., and not much more than that distance from Ebensburg. There is a thriving ORCHARD of choice fruit and an abundance of pure water on each of the farms, a good well being within five feet of the house on the farm first described. Nearly all the land is cleared and under cultivation.

☞ Persons wishing to purchase can either apply to ex-Sheriff JOHN RYAN, Johnstown, or to the owner on the premises. LUKE ROGERS.

THE RED PEPPER.

What ails the human throat in this latter day, and what has become of the old-fashioned red pepper? Men who are now forty years old knew little of throat troubles in their boyhood. There was a little sore throat occasionally, and once in a while a little quinsy, and you would hear at long intervals of putrid sore throat. Children were not as daintily cared for in those days as now. Few of them ever had underclothing to wear, and scarcely a boy who had an overcoat till he was old enough to earn the money for it himself. Croup was the parental horror of that day, and yet as butter and alum were early found a sure remedy for that trouble, warping or contracting and so breaking the false membrane as it was forming, parents had no great dread of that. Children had few colds, and no serious sore throat—and when they had, a cup of red-pepper tea sent the ailing boy to bed sweating, and brought him out well in the morning.

The red-pepper of our grandmothers—what has become of it? Who that lived in those sensible days does not remember the shining string of alternate red and green peppers that hung from the rafters over the kitchen fire, and which had been planted, raised and strung up by grandmother's own hand, and hung in the place of honor, all to cure the children's colds, colics, and cramps, and the older folks' congestion or chills—death to all the c's. And who does not remember how perfectly the pepper accomplished its work—a little hard to take, a little hot after it was down, and yet bringing you all right in the morning, and lending a halo of pride to gran'ma's face at the breakfast table that the puzzled face of the modern doctor seldom shares. Ah, it was a rare old magic—the red peppers that the grandmothers raised and used. It cured all the juvenile ills we have enumerated and many more. So great and quick was its magic that many a boy, who had such a sore attack of colic, croup or cold that he was sure that he couldn't possibly go to school, was cured at the mere sight or smell of the steaming tea, and sent bounding off to school as sound as a trivet, and as merry as a cricket. Indeed, sudden cures have been made at the mere mention of it. Older people, too, men who were a little afraid of working out all day in the damp or of digging in a well, and who now think whiskey the medium of warding off possible chills, were often saved by grandmothers red-pepper tea.

What has become of the red-pepper? And how did it happen that just as it went out of fashion diphtheria came in, and with it a dozen other throat diseases with long and mysterious names—and none of which medical science, which has made the slowest progress of all the sciences, is able to treat with much success? Our grandmothers kept the old and young throats of our generation cured up with red and cayenne pepper, and warded off many other diseases with them. What, since they have disappeared, has taken their place, or is doing their work? Something, whatever it is, that doesn't cure.

A gentleman who was a boy thirty years ago, said yesterday: "The reason there is so much diphtheria is because the people have quit using the red pepper." The man he was talking to had a sore throat, and was trying to stave it off till night, with some of the gargles and washes of the later day, so as to get his day's work done, and was growing worse all the time. The apostle of the red pepper said; "Throw that stuff out and send and get a little vial of brandy, and fill it one-fourth full of cayenne pepper, and put the cork of it to your tongue every half hour, and your sore throat will begin to heal at once, and your voice cease being squeeky." It was done and it did. Later in the day a gentleman trained in medical science, but not practicing it, and so not conceited in its latter day nature, came in, and was asked: "How does this red pepper cure my throat—that is, how does it act?" He replied: "It acts as a local stimulus; and in two ways strengthens the diseased part of the throat and prevents the growth of any false matter—heats and relaxes, stimulates and tones—red pepper always does that." He added: "The world would be a great deal better off, and a great deal healthier, if it used more of it."

So, while the modern doctor stands puzzled and perplexed and unsuccessful before diphtheria, and while medical science can do no more to control or cure it than when it first appeared some twenty-five years ago, and while some times four or five die of it yet in a single family, why not revive the good old plan of grandmother's—of watching the children's throats all the time, detecting the first trace of trouble, and then using the old fashioned red pepper to fight and ward off the disease while it is incipient and before it becomes rooted?

Doctors will laugh at it. But doctors always have laughed at the best people to cure the sick—and ward off sickness in the world—the good old women, wise in experience, healing in their nursing, and those who have raised large families of their own, and helped to raise and save all the weakly children in the neighborhood, and any of them is worth more in the sick room of a child ill with children's troubles than all the doctors in town.

We propose the restoration of red pepper to its old place in family favor, and to its undoubted usefulness. We believe grandmothers can take it, and with proper care by beginning in time, beat all the doctors yet in fighting the dread diseases of the throat, and in saving the children from their ravages—Des Moines State Register.

AMMONIA AS A HAIR STIMULANT.—Professor Erasmus Wilson, of London, gives the weight of his eminent authority in favor of ammonia as a healthful stimulant for the hair, being preferable because it is unlikely to create inflammation and its consequences; it is neither absorbable into the system, nor could it do harm if such were the case; and its odor, refreshing at the moment of its use, speedily evaporates. In a case of ordinary madesia, or falling out of the hair, Professor Wilson precribes a lotion composed of strong liquid ammonia, almond oil and chloroform, of each one part dissolved with five parts alcohol or rosemary, and made fragrant by the addition of a drachm of the essential oil of lemons, the lotion to be dabbed upon the skin of the head after through friction with the hair brush.

OLD FENCES.—Half of the weeds that trouble farmers are harbored along old and useless fences. A fence that is not a barrier against stock is always harmful and useless, inasmuch as few farmers think it necessary to clean the weeds from the line of fences so long as the rest of the field is kept clean. He forgets the seeds that are blown over his own and his neighbors grounds from these very weeds. Have only such fences as are strictly necessary and keep the soil along them clean.

FOR ROAST BEEF.—To flavor a roast of beef deliciously, to make it tender, and to give variety, which is essential in the family where beef is the staple meat eaten—to do this nothing is required but a large lemon; cut it in two pieces, squeeze all the juice upon the roast, then after peeling the lemon, roll it up in the roast. When the lemon is used no water is needed. The roast should be a fat one, to issue good gravy, and the lemon acid will remove the oily taste sometimes objected to.

TREASURER'S SALE

—OF—

UNSEATED Lands and Lots

—IN—

Cambria County.

A. D. 1882.

I, JOHN A. KENNEDY, Treasurer of Cambria County, in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in pursuance of the several Acts of Assembly in said Commonwealth directing the time and manner of selling Unseated Lands for Taxes, do hereby give notice that the following described tracts of Unseated Lands and Lots of Ground in the said County of Cambria, or such parts thereof as may be necessary to pay arrearages of taxes due thereon for one year or more, will be offered for sale at the Court House in the Borough of Ebensburg, on the SECOND MONDAY, being the 12th day of June next, and continue by adjournment from day to day until the whole be sold for such arrearages of taxes and costs necessarily accruing thereon.

How to Get Apples in "Off" and Years—A Hint for This Year.

L. H. Wires, of Southville, writes to the Springfield Rep follows: The past season has strated the fact that the value of chard depends very much upon it produces its crop in the bearing or on the alternate off year. In apple crop was of little value. would have been worth in many of the country three times as in the year before. And the diff in the quantity and price that so broadly marked in the two will undoubtedly continue for years to come, and probably for a series of years in the future as in the past. Any one who will take trouble to look over the price for apples during the last sixty will find that the price has almost riably been higher in the odd than even years. Why it is that our have so generally grown into the of producing their best crops in the years and remaining so nearly during the odd years is one of the plained mysteries. It sometimes pens that a late frost kills the of an orchard and changes for a the bearing year, the trees bearing partial and sometimes a poor crop next year. If no artificial means used to encourage the new habit render it permanent it usually back into the old way. But if the have sufficient encouragement to them to get the new habit thoroughly formed, they will have no disposition return to the old, but will continue produce crops as regularly in the in the even years. To undertake change the bearing year of an orchard is something of a task, but not a task but what it would pay in the run. With an old orchard the thing to do is to remove the blossoms small fruit. A liberal dressing of nure should be applied to the ground induce a vigorous growth, and it be all the better if applied the fall fore, as the late fall and the early will assist in carying the fertilizing ter down to the roots. If applied in the spring it will be of but little the first year. Different varieties require different treatment, varieties that are not very profuse ers will require more vigorous and ough treatment than those that For instance, the Famuse or snow is a very profuse bearer, and if the soms are removed the coming the tree well pruned and the applied early, so as to get the benefit the spring rains, it will be very to bear a fair crop next year, and probably a full crop. Treatment single year will not be likely to tablish the habit. If the few that appear the following year moved, it will be apt to get the habit so thoroughly established will likely continue without any care. With varieties that are profuse in their bearing habit it quently necessary to resort to more roic treatment. With such trees, removing the blossoms or small some time between the middle of and the 10th of July, if the tree is ing vigorously (but not otherwise) should be made entirely around the limbs, cutting clear through bark. A second cut should be quarter of an inch from the first intervening section of bark carefully moved. A new bark will be formed a short time, but the downward the sap will be arrested and the tion of fruit buds so encouraged trees so treated will be very be covered with bloom the following spring? To confirm the habit be necessary to repeat the treatment. With orchards, containing large few farmers will want to spend the necessary to effect the change, but young trees it is but little trouble to move the blossoms, and by giving the treatment above described for years thoroughly establish the habit in the odd years, and thus the value of their returns. If the of the bark is properly removed no will be done to the tree, even if ed in alternate years for a long time is a fact that the bark can be from the entire body of a thrifty tree during the latter part of June fore part of July without any injury the tree. By taking one half part of the top of a tree and giving the above described treatment, the so treated will have its bearing ed and the tree made to produce of apples on one or the other part year.

AMOLE—A PLANT THAT Y SOAP.—These cacti grow on the Am ican continent from Mount Shasta the north to a similar latitude in America, and from the Pacific east of the Rio Grande, through Mexico and eastern Texas.

The flower stalks are destitute leaves but are plentifully supplied branches about eighteen inches from which flowers of white and colors are suspended in the flower season. The bulbous root is from to six inches in diameter and from to eighteen inches long.

A saponaceous juice is expressed the root, and the fibre of the beckled for the manufacture of ses, cushions and chair seats. The etable soap extracted from the been used by the Indians, Mexicans others for many years as a hair and exceeds in purity our manufac from animal substances.

The preservative qualities of are well known, and its use gives hair a fine natural glow, preventing cay of the hair and entirely eradica dandruff or all impurities on the Cattle eat the leaves in the spring a purgative. And cut into bits on water where fish abound, is stupefaction of the fish, which can be easily taken.

The price among the Indians Mexicans who sell it in Tucson cents a bunch of two stalks (mancuerna).

For cleaning flannels the found vastly superior. It may be that the manufacture and prepa of amole may become one of the trial pursuits of the age.—Citizen.
